As Huge Throng Greets Aircade at Mansfield Airport

10,000 Crowd Airport To Welcome Fliers

31 Airplanes In J. A. C. Air Tour Land At Mansfield Port To Give Aircade Biggest Reception In Ohio

The second annual all-Ohio air tour, sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce brought 31 airplanes to Mansfield yesterday and attracted a crowd estimated at more than 10,000 to the municipal airport. It was the largest crowd ever to assemble at the airport.

Beneath the broiling July sun, city and local J. A. C. officials welcomed the aircade, which included fliers from a dozen Ohio cities. They participated in ceremonies at the field which were topped by the presentation of the Mansfield trophy to Miss Emily Haberbuchler, 471 Hammond avenue.

Every available parking space at the port was taken and hundreds of motorists jammed highways leading to the field.

William Munson, of Cleveland, manager of the tour, said Mansfield gave the aircade its biggest reception. Approximately 3,000 persons greeted the fliers at Akron.

Thirty-one airplanes of the 44 that made up the caravan came in from Akron shortly after 4 p. m. They remained about an hour and then took off for Cleveland to conclude the three-day jaunt during which they visited 11 cities.

Miss Mansfield who joined the flotilla at Akron was flown there by James R. Harrington, airport

ONE KILLED, 17 HURT IN AREA

Morrow County High School Boy Fatally Injured In Automobile Crash.

While Richland county was without a traffic death or injury over the week-end, a high school youth was killed near Marengo in Morrow county and 17 persons, including a Mansfield woman, were injured in crashes in adjoining counties.

Seven Marengo school pupils were injured, two seriously, in a two-car crash in which Howard Fissel, 16, of Marengo was killed. The accident occurred at 7 p. m. Sunday at Mason's Corners about two miles northeast of Marengo.

The Fissel youth, driver of one of the cars, died of a skull fracture. Five of the injured young people were taken to Mercy hospital, Mt. Vernon. The eight young people were riding in two cars which collided at the crest of a hill.

Mrs. Irene Sutter, Mansfield, suffered a fractured jaw and other injuries late Saturday night when a car in which she was riding went into a ditch near Willard. She is in Municipal hospital, Willard. Frank Polachek, Willard, driver of the car, received a nose fracture, while Donald Sands, Willard, another occupant of the car, suffered rib fractures and back injuries. Polachek said he lost control of the car.

Delay In Debate On Military Training Legislation Looms

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt sent to congress today the draft of suggested legislation to permit him to order the national guard and the officers reserve corps into active training.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A delay in congressional debate on peacetime conscription appeared likely today, in view of "compromise" talk designed to avert a stiff floor fight.

While John L. Lewis, CIO president, and Senator Taft (R., Ohio) joined the opposition to compulsory military training, Senator Barkley (D., Ky.) the majority leader, said that he favored giving members time to study the measure.

Barkley made it clear that he personally approved of some sort of conscription program, but his comment raised the possibility that the senate might not take up on Wednesday the Burke-Wadsworth bill, as originally planned.

In the house, influential Democrats said that they wanted to "make haste slowly" with the manpower phases of the defense program. The house military committee will resume hearings tomorrow on the conscription legislation, with Secretary of War Stimson as a witness some time this week.

The senate military committee completed Saturday the text of the training bill, which would authorize registering of 42,000,000 men from 18 to 63, inclusive. It contemplates drafting by Oct. 1 about 400,000 men from 21 to 30, inclusive.

Suggestions for a compromise centered on a proposal to substitute military training of men between 21 and 25.

Lewis voiced his opposition to conscription yesterday after conferring with Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.) one of the leading foes of the program. The CIO chief said he was "in full agreement with Senator Wheeler on this thing."

Senator Taft, like Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) suggested trying a "voluntary system" of army enlistment before adopting conscription. Although some military officials have contended that such a plan would fail, Vandenberg predicted that 1,000,000 American youths would volunteer within three months.

The immediate destination of the Duke of Windsor's luggage remained a mystery. Ship's officers merely disclosed that it was sent unaccompanied, in care of the line.

FDR CHECKS UP

Inspects Defenses in Bay, 1st Line to Save Capital.

NORFOLK, Va. — (U.P.) — President Roosevelt today inspected the Chesapeake bay defenses which guard the water approaches to the national capital.

While naval guns roared out a 21-gun salute and the full naval establishment lined the docks, Mr. Roosevelt's yacht Potomac was tied up at the Portsmouth navy yard shortly before 10 a. m.

Accompanying the president were two cabinet officers and military and naval experts.

It was Mr. Roosevelt's first inspection of the great fleet base at Hampton Roads and it coincided with an expanded naval construction program at nearby Newport News Shipbuilding company, unequalled even during the World war.

Fairground Busy As Exhibits Arrive For 4-Day Farm Show

The Richland county fairground was a bee hive of activity today as exhibitors began moving in hundreds of head of livestock preparatory to the opening Wednesday of the county's 72nd annual fair.

So great was the number of cattle, sheep, draft horses, and swine entries as the entry deadline expired, that fair board directors today ordered tents erected near the exhibit halls to accommodate the overflow.

R. D. Hale, secretary, said there are more than 125 cattle entries, 160 sheep entries, more than 200 hogs and more than 100 head of draft horses.

Hale said that two tents were being erected today to accommodate the overflow of draft horses alone.

The fairground mid-way was being put in place with the arrival of concession equipment, shows and other attractions. Work of setting up the mid-way was started Saturday and continued all day yesterday. Amusement rides were to be set up today.

Optimistic about the success of this year's fair, H. H. Wolf, fair board president, this morning predicted that attendance during the four-day farm show which closes Saturday night will be the best ever.

CITY BAKES AS RELIEF FAILS

Mercury Goes Up Into 90's Again; No Change Expected Before Thursday.

Despite the weatherman's repeated promises of relief from the heat wave, it was still hot today and there was no sign of any substantial change before Thursday.

The forecast today predicted generally fair and continued warm tonight and Tuesday, except for scattered thundershowers near Lake Erie.

With the mercury at 89 at noon today, a reading of 90 degrees or more was almost certain for the 10th consecutive day in Mansfield.

Sunday was the second hottest day of the summer in the city with a high of 94 recorded during the afternoon. Cincinnati topped other Ohio cities with a reading of 101, highest of the year.

The heat wave was blamed yesterday for the death of Miss Evelyn Hendel, 26, a stenographer at New Washington, Crawford county, who drowned in Lake Erie three miles north of Painesville. Miss Hendel's companion, Edward J. Peta, 30, manager of a Cleveland sewing machine firm, also was drowned. Miss Hendel had been visiting in Cleveland.

Native of Tido, Miss Hendel was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hendel of New Washington, who survive, along with two sisters.

The body was removed to the High funeral home in New Wash-

Heavy Docket To Face Grand Jury Session Tomorrow

The Richland county grand jury will face one of the heaviest dockets in recent years when it convenes at 9 a. m. Tuesday in a session that is expected to last at least three days.

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said 80 witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify before the jury in at least 32 cases.

Topping the list of cases will be one involving a murder charge against Albert Davis, colored, of Mansfield, accused of fatally stabbing Mrs. Lena Merton, also colored, in her room here several weeks ago.

Davis has been held in the county jail without bond since the slaying.

The prosecutor said he would ask for secret indictments in 13 cases, but he declined to discuss the nature of the cases. It is believed, however, that most of them involve non-support charges.

Also scheduled to come before the jury is a case against James Foster, accused of criminally assaulting a 15-year-old Mansfield high school girl on a lonely road northeast of the city.

Intense British Fire Brings 30 Attackers Down

Score of Bombers and Fighters Fall in Battle Staged by Hundreds of Ships Over Southeast Coast; One Wave Of Bombers Put to Flight.

(By United Press)

Nazi war planes struck their fiercest blow at the British Isles today but paid a high toll to the increasingly powerful defense forces.

Whether the attack means that Adolf Hitler's long-threatened blitzkrieg was at hand—as suggested by dispatches from German-dominated France—or whether the German offensive was merely being gradually intensified still was a subject of speculation.

At Rome, the Fascist press indicated that there might not be any definite "launching" of a blitzkrieg by saying that it had been underway since Friday.

In any event, the tempo of aerial war on both sides was steadily mounting, with British bombers ranging deep into Germany and striking along the German-occupied French coast while the Nazis concentrated on British coastal shipping and scattered land objectives.

German dive bombers and fighting planes attacked in waves along the southeast coast of England (possibly the vital Dover sector), but met a tremendous anti-aircraft barrage and a swarm of British fighting planes. Approximately 30 German planes had been shot down since Sunday, about 30 early today.

It was the biggest raid and the most violent aerial battle of the war, eye witnesses said.

The anti-aircraft barrage was so intense that the last wave of bombers broke off their dives and fled out of range. R. A. F. fighting planes streaked after them, fighting over the English channel.

In addition to the aerial attacks, the Germans continued to claim that their U-boats and airplanes were inflicting tremendous shipping losses on Britain. In the last three days, the German reports claim that more than 200,000 tons of British shipping was sent to the bottom, although some of these reports were from submarines which meant that the losses might have been inflicted over a number of days.

In Berlin it was asserted that the British shipping losses were greater than the 800,000 tons lost in a month at the peak of World war U-boat raids and that the British were facing a food shortage.

The Nazi emphasis on British shipping losses and the increased intensity of aerial attack on the British Isles left unanswered the question of whether Hitler would attempt the threatened invasion of Britain.

At Vichy, capital of defeated France, it was disclosed that all railroad traffic into and through certain sections of German-occupied territory had been halted or was closely controlled. Such measures were viewed in some sources as meaning that the climatic attack on Britain was at hand, but the form of attack still was uncertain.

In Rome, Fascist press statements that the blitzkrieg against Britain had been underway for four days indicated that the axis powers might be planning the gradual increase of aerial warfare in an attempt to destroy British resistance without an actual invasion.

Britain also faced new dangers far from home. At Gibraltar, a terrific explosion killed three per-

TRIAL: High Court Set Up To Hear Ex-Premier's Case

(By Associated Press)

VICHY, France—Minister of Justice Raphael Alibert today submitted a decree to the council of ministers creating a high court to try former Premier Edouard Daladier and others charged with responsibility for the war and the defeat of France.

Although the official list of persons to be arraigned before the high court has not been announced, it appeared certain that former Premiers Daladier, Paul Reynaud and Leon Blum, Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin, former Minister of Interior Georges Mandel and former Air Minister Pierre Cot will be the "stars" of the trials.

The Alibert decree which the council of ministers studied today constitutes a high court composed of seven magistrates who will be designated for the independence of all political ties.

Each of the former political and military leaders will be granted individual hearings. Mandel alone appears to risk a death sentence because he may be charged with plotting against the state's security.

Daladier and the others will be indicted on political charges and are liable to lifelong detention in a fortress if found guilty.

Informed circles insisted there was no intention of taking reprisals against these men and that the trials would be conducted in the spirit of establishing full responsibility for involving France in war and the events leading to the disaster.

Mandel allegedly sought to contact British leaders while he was in North Africa whence he fled with Daladier several days before the armistice.

(British have officially denied this allegation.)

Writer Objects To Attitude

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A few days ago my morning paper showed the picture of a radiant young bride in all her loveliness, looking up at a stalwart young man to whom she had just been married, and for whom she rejected a share of her father's wealth.

That her American-born sisters did not agree to the harsh provision of their father's will was shown by the fact that she was married in the home of one of them. When interviewed by the press, the sister said that the father's will would not be broken but the bride would be given substantial gifts from time to time.

A week never passes without some girl writing to this column concerning her family's refusal to let her marry the man of her choice because he is of different national origin. When the man in question is a creditable citizen, amply able to support a wife and his only crime happens to be that he's an American, I see red.

Fathers, or maybe grandfathers, have come to this country and prospered. They've made enough money to enjoy the comforts, even the luxuries the United States affords. Yet their hearts remain in the Old World where they had nothing and were regarded as not much more than the worm with which the rich landowner went fishing.

In the old countries, these aliens were taxed, threatened, driven, subjected to persecutions and were generally conceded to be social ciphers.

Sometimes the prosperous alien becomes a citizen of this country; sometimes he never does. He may take out his first papers.

In some states this intention to become a citizen enables him to vote, and frequently he votes as a politician, no more American than himself but from the same country, dictates.

We have these wheels within wheels all over these United States, seeking to pull us down, seeking always to aid the homeland where conditions were intolerable. What's the matter with such people? Do they never stop to think what conditions would be like if they went back to the country from which they came?

Yet, insofar as is possible, they wish to impose these Old World conditions on children born in this democracy, this land of free thought, free speech, free press. Thousands of girls are sacrificed to such loveless marriages every year. They have written to me that their mothers have never learned to speak a word of English because their fathers objected.

It is with a feeling of pride that this column offers its congratulations to the American-born girl who rejected a considerable legacy to marry the man she loved. At the moment we have our hands full with these Americans in name only: It's high time that we amended some of our laws which enable them to come here and prosper while they show no loyalty to the United States.

HOROSCOPE

Ways and means for pushing to such objectives are carefully laid out, with the expenditure of much hard work, determination and executive ability. This is bound to impress employers, superiors.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are promised a year of much progress, especially in the launching of new and ambitious projects which appeal to the practical analysis of superiors, employers or those in financial power, who are to be convinced of the solid worth as well as the novelty of such propositions. Industry, perseverance and soundly constructed ideas are bound to win support and expansion from those friendly disposed.

A child born on this day should be steady, persistent, and ambitious, with much energy, executive ability and practical creative ability. This will attract substantial endorsement of superiors and those of means and influence.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

QUEEN OLGA was calm at my message, but her daughter threw me an interested and intrigued glance.

"How exciting!" she said. "I hope he wants me to come over also."

"Olina!" her mother said with strong rebuke in her voice, and the girl, deflated in an instant, as she always is by her mother's discipline, said mechanically, "I'm sorry, Maman," and stood, literally at attention, awaiting her mother's further pleasure.

"I shall be glad to go over with you, at once, my dear Madge," Olga said, and, throwing a scarf around her shoulders for protection against the draughty hall, she walked out of the door with me, and down the corridor to my father's room. On the way, she put a detaining hand on my arm.

"Only one question," she said "I gathered, from your silence, that your father did not wish to see Olina. By any chance, does this summons have any connection with her—activities?"

"It has nothing to do with Olina, except indirectly," I said. "But it is something most important, and, because of the danger involved, must be invested with absolute secrecy until the peril of which you know is over. My father is very anxious for you to know this secret, but he feels that your knowledge must be conditioned upon a promise from you. Unless he secures that promise, which he knows will be strictly kept, he cannot give you some information which he knows you will be exceedingly glad to receive."

"I can think of no promise your father would ask of me which I could not make," she said graciously. "Won't you please tell me what it is?"

"Simply this," I answered. "He wishes your promise that you will not by gesture or word—even a syllable—pass on the information he gives you, not even to your daughter, or your betrothed husband—until he gives you permission to reveal the secret."

"He means especially to my daughter and Philip, doesn't he?" she asked. "But you and he may rest assured that neither they nor any other person will hear what he wishes to tell me. I give you my solemn word on that."

"I don't need that," I told her, smiling. "Your mere assurance is enough both for my father and for me. And—one word more. It is not bad news. You have no need to be worried. But I really have no right to say even this much. My father wishes to tell you his errand himself."

"I should not have asked," she murmured.

"Of course you should," I told her. "But here we are, and you won't have to wait much longer. My father has much on his mind tonight."

My father, Harry and Dicky rose as we entered, and the younger men set chairs for us, and, unseen by Olga, my father raised his eyebrows slightly in an unspoken question which I knew meant, "Did she promise?" I nodded in answer, as I took a chair beside Olga and facing "the Chief." Then Dicky and Harry also sat down, and my father leaned forward.

"I have sent for you, Your Majesty, to give you some good news," he said, and I realized that he, as well as my mother, of the formal old generation, could not bring himself to address the exiled queen in any other manner than the one which he thought was her due.

Olga smiled at him.

"I shall be very happy to hear it," she said. "I—I—need good news."

"It is such surprising news," my father said slowly, "that I wished you to be fully prepared for the shock of hearing it."

Queen Olga paled, and looked steadily at him.

"My—my son!" she said. "My—my—people! Have you heard from them?"

"The Authority on Authorities"

LEADING SINGLETONS

Against a suit contract, the lead of a singleton may be the best or the worst way to launch your attack on the declarer's citadel. It all depends upon the bidding and the rest of your hand. When there has been no calling of side suits, there still are plenty of other considerations to guide you, governed by basic principles which operate logically a goodly percentage of the time.

Usually, if you hold four or more trumps, including a pretty sure trick winner, and also a fairly long side suit, you will do better to force the declarer to trump and try to shorten his holding until yours is longer than his. Thus the heart J would figure to work out better than the club 7 from hand No. 1 in the following group, the bidding having been merely 1-Spade by South, 3-Spades by North and 4-Spades by South.

1. ♠ A 8 5 4 ♥ J 10 8 6 5 ♦ Q 6 2 ♣ 7
2. ♠ A 5 4 ♥ 9 ♦ 9 8 7 5 3 ♣ 10 7 3 2
3. ♠ 8 5 4 ♥ 9 ♦ A 8 6 5 3 ♣ 10 7 3 2
4. ♠ K 5 4 ♥ 9 ♦ K 8 7 5 3 ♣ 10 7 3 2
5. ♠ K 5 ♥ 9 ♦ K 8 7 5 3 ♣ 10 7 4 3 2
6. ♠ Q 5 4 ♥ K 7 3 2 ♦ K J 6 3 2 ♣ 7

Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 illustrate another basic point. When you lead a singleton, that suit is more likely to be the long suit in declarer's hand or dummy than some other suit in which you have more cards. The declarer can read it as a singleton as well as your partner can. So upon winning the trick, he probably will run trumps and then the side suit, discarding on it the losers of other suits. That probably would happen with hand No. 3.

But if you have two or three trumps headed by the A, when the declarer starts to run trumps, you can win and then have a trump left for ruffing after you try to put your partner in the lead with some other suit. So a singleton lead figures to be good from hands Nos. 2 or 4. But it would not be good from No. 5, because if your spade K won the second round of trumps, you would not have a trump left for ruffing. A low club should be led from No. 3 or 5.

One other time for leading a singleton is when any other lead would jeopardize an honor, as in Hand No. 6.

Great Men Often Dull In School

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph. D.

Some men of genius were school dullards. Humphreys Davey had the reputation of being an idle boy, with a gift for making verse, but no aptitude for school studies. Composer Wagner was demoted at school because he said he became lazy and slovenly. James Russell Lowell was reprimanded privately and publicly during his sophomore year at college for general negligence in themes, forensics and recitations, and finally suspended on account of continued neglect of his college duties.

Oliver Goldsmith's first teacher counted him the dullest boy she had ever taught, and his tutor called him ignorant and stupid. Byron stood at the foot of his class at school. Philosopher Hegel was declared at the university where he studied to be especially deficient in philosophy. Swift was at first refused his degree because of dullness and inefficiency.

"Very Ordinary"

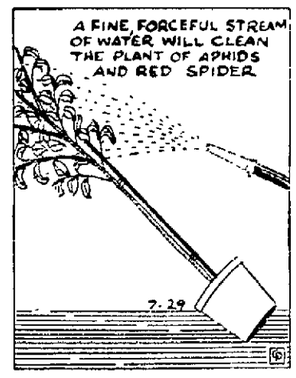
Wordsworth was disappointing at school. Grant was never above average. W. H. Seward was called "too stupid to learn." Napoleon graduated forty-second in his class. Charles Darwin was singularly incapable of mastering any language. He says when he left school, "I was considered by all my masters and by my father as a very ordinary boy, rather below the common standard in intellect. To my deep mortification, my father once said to me, 'You care for nothing but shooting dogs and rat-catching, and you will be a disgrace to yourself and all your family.'" Thomas Edison was given up by his teacher at school as hopeless.

If these geniuses were students in the best modern school, would they be discovered? Most, I believe, would be, though not all.

Undoubtedly an intelligence test would have discovered marked ability in many of them. Perhaps the biggest service an intelligence test can render is at finding genius ordinarily overlooked. Also the best modern school offers more opportunity than the school of yore for children to find themselves. Nevertheless, I suppose we still have a long, long way to go to reach the ideal.

Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY



Fuchsia, One of Few Plants That Bloom In Shade.

The fuchsia deserves even more attention than it receives from the average gardener for it is one of the few plants which will really bloom profusely in the shade. It is for this reason that fuchsias are popular for use in window boxes on the north side of the house or as potted plants for the shady corner of the porch or terrace.

Sometimes, however, fuchsias need special care as a sort of payment for their willingness to bloom in the shade, since they are apt to be attacked by red spiders or green aphids. When either of these pests put in an appearance on a fuchsia, the plant should be given a shower bath as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The fine stream of cold water will clean the plant of either, or both, red spiders and green aphids.

Fuchsias like lots of water and they also respond well to fertilizing with a complete plant food, or one rich in nitrogen. Since fuchsias are bothered by draughts, they should be placed where the wind cannot reach them.

FAR FROM HOME.

TRACE GERMAN AIR POWER TO ORGANIZATION

Force Under Own Commander and Equal to Other War Service Branches.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is a report on the German air force, its organization as one of the three co-equal units of the German fighting machine and its role in the war. A similar dispatch describing Great Britain's air forces will be carried tomorrow.)

By RICHARD C. HOTTELET
(UP Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN — The German air force, which started from scratch six years ago, has indisputably the world's greatest.

The one factor which, more than any other, made the Reich's "Luftwaffe" what it is today was unified organization—organization so perfect in detail that the German air force can function in one capacity or a dozen, in whole or in part, in offense or defense without a hitch and at a moment's notice.

As one of Germany's three armed services, with which it is co-equal, the air force has its own commander-in-chief. With the army and navy, it is subject to orders from Adolf Hitler's high command, which is the supreme unifying and coordinating power.

Under the commander-in-chief are military commanders and administrative officers who are in charge of personnel, equipment and supply.

The methods of organization and routines followed not only are brand new, experts have discovered, but are also completely flexible so that they may be changed to meet new situations and to allow the greatest possible discretion to the numerous responsible officials.

The air force is not, as recent history may have seemed to indicate, a purely offensive service. It includes every branch of Germany's defense against air attack, including all anti-aircraft artillery. It also has its own signal and medical corps as well as other specialized groups which enable it to operate as a self-contained unit

The air force may operate independently, or in conjunction with the army and navy. Air force units may be detached for service under army or navy command. Discretion for such employment of the air force lies exclusively with the high command.

Although Reich Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering outranks Admiral Erich Raeder, commander-in-chief of the navy, and Gen. Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch, commander-in-chief of the army, the air force itself enjoys no precedence over the other two branches.

Frequently the three commanders-in-chief confer with Hitler and the high command, providing the views and the data necessary to enable the high command to coordinate all efforts of the armed forces.

The past 11 months of warfare have illustrated how the air force works. In an operation like the Polish campaign, the army would request a certain number of planes and anti-craft batteries for local reconnaissance, artillery observation and protection.

These units would be temporarily detached by the high command and placed under direct command of the army. Meanwhile, the main body of the air force would be operating in its own sphere, bombing enemy lines of communications and air bases and fighting enemy airplanes.

In an operation over difficult terrain and across a body of water, as in the Norwegian campaign, the air force would be closely coordinated with the navy as well as with the army.

In a mixed campaign, involving land as well as water operations, as in the western offensive against France and Great Britain, air power would be used constantly both independently and in coordination with land and sea forces.

At the outset of the drive, acting in its own realm, the air force would strike en masse against enemy air bases with a view to seizing air superiority at once. If success met this attempt, large units might then be detached for army service to aid ground forces to smash their way deeper into enemy territory.

Always, however, whatever its function of the moment, the air force is cooperating with its brother services in driving toward some specific strategic objective.

In France, apart from its "normal duties," the air force was called upon to attack enemy land troops and bomb enemy tank concentrations and fortifications.

In all instances the greatest flexibility of operation was maintained. There was no adherence to set schemes of action merely for the scheme's sake.

As the army moves into enemy territory, the air force moves along with it. One "airfleet," comparable to a land unit, might move in side-by-side with ground troops to set up air fields and its own signal and supply network.

There is no set rule as to the size of an airfleet. One German expert defined it as "as few as 10 planes or as many as 10,000, depending on the job assigned to it."

In overseas operations the air force would act independently, raiding enemy industries, harbors and other military objectives, and in close cooperation with the navy, bombing enemy shipping or hunting submarines.

An illustration of flexibility was the organization of Germany's crack parachute troops. The original idea was Gen. Ernst Udet's, whose job at the time ostensibly was in connection with the technical development of airplane engines.

But there was no jealousy or quibbling and, according to one non-German aviation expert, "no one complained that he was overstepping the function of his office—they all helped."

The Reich is divided into four airfleets (luftfoltten), each of which includes several air districts (luftgaue). In addition, there are special districts covering small areas of greater military vulnerability, such as Berlin, Leipzig and the Ruhr industrial valley.

If the airfleet gets an offensive assignment, it may leave its home base or even depart from Germany lock, stock and barrel. It then becomes a completely self-contained fighting unit fully supplied with its own fighting, bombing, reconnaissance, staff and hospital planes and its own anti-aircraft batteries, signal corps, quartermasters detachments and medical units.

One expert summed it up by saying:

"If circumstance demands, the airfleet can have infantrymen, sailors, artillery men and engineers assigned to it. Nobody worries about the seeming heterogeneity of organization—the only consideration is that the airfleet is to do a job and do it efficiently."

In fighting defensive operations the airfleet would have the advantage of possessing complete equipment and operating from its own bases where administrative facilities have been worked out to the smallest detail in peacetime.

Such operations would include anti-aircraft protection for industries and cities, balloon barrages and supervision of civilian air alarms.

Always Suffered From Gas In Stomach After Eating

Messenger at Mansfield Post-Office Had "Heartburn," Acid Risings, Belching, Cramps and Other Troubles Associated With Constipation. Tells How "Vendol" Gave Satisfying Relief, and Advises Sufferers to Try It.

MR. REGIS DOUGHERTY

Here is another victory to the credit of Vendol, the popular medicine made from extracts of Roots and Herbs with mild Alkalines added for double benefits. It comes from among the many endorsements given by well known and leading citizens who have found Vendol so beneficial.

Mr. Regis Dougherty, young 19-year-old messenger at the local postoffice, who lives at 275 Marion avenue, this city, gives the following experience: "I had suffered almost continually from constipation which made me feel bad in many ways, one of which was that after eating my stomach would become upset, the food would churn, and gas form in such large amounts that I'd feel full and bloated, breath came hard, acid risings burned my throat, and felt like a lump would choke me.

"It also made me nervous, and many a restless hour was spent after going to bed; then I'd feel washed out next morning from a headache and bad taste in my mouth.

"So many people I know were taking Vendol and found it so good, that I began taking it a few weeks ago. The first bottle proved how good it is, and now I'm feeling so good that I'm thankful I started taking it.

"Vendol relieved my constipation thoroughly, yet with ease, and after that it seemed all the upset stomach conditions passed off. Vendol is a splendid medicine, and I'm glad to recommend it."

If Vendol helped this person living right here at home, it will do the same for you, so why not begin taking this double-acting compound made from Senna, Dandelion, Queen's Root, May Apple, Anis Seed, and 7 other roots and herbs combined with valuable alkalines. Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts.; learn how Vendol will help you also. All drug stores sell Vendol.—Adv.

Army Air Corps Lays Plans for 150-Ton Bombing Ships

NEW GIANTS OF AIR EXPECTED IN NEAR FUTURE

Engineers Sure Huge Planes Would Be Practical In Military Maneuvers.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The army air corps disclosed today that it is planning for future airplanes three times as large as its present huge four-engine bombers.

Such planes, each big enough to fill a football field and as high as a two-story building, may not be flying for another five or ten years, but aeronautical engineers declared that they would be practical.

"The bigger you build them the more efficient they are," one engineer declared.

The air corps now is completing at Wright Field, Dayton, O., a power plant laboratory designed to test engines up to 8,000 horsepower, using propellors 40 feet in diameter.

The largest present twin-row air-cooled engines develop a maximum of 2,000 horsepower, and the average automobile engine rates less than 100 horsepower. The largest propellor blades now in use on large bombers or transport airplanes are about 16 feet in diameter.

Five years ago the absolute limit in engine power was believed to be about 500 horsepower, but the figure went up steadily to 2,000.

Within the last year engineers and scientists of the national advisory committee for aeronautics at Langley Field, Va., tripled that power output merely by a supercooling arrangement of the fins on the jacket of a motor cylinder. The faster heat is carried away from the cylinder, the more power can be developed.

The largest planes flying today are land and sea ships weighing a maximum of 50 tons. They are capable of flying 2,000 miles at a cruising speed of 130 miles an hour.

Private aeronautical engineers visioned the 150-ton airplane as a "flying wing" without tail assembly or fuselage, guided by wing-tip rudders and elevators, with engines mounted inside and driving pusher propellors on the rear edge of the wing.

Equipped for military purposes, such planes would be able to carry more than five tons of bombs from American shores to European cities, from Alaska to Japan, or similar distances, drop the bombs, and return without stopping.

PREDICTS A 23RD CONGRESSMAN

Neffner Population Estimate Calls For Increase.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Ohio will be entitled to one additional congressman-at-large if the preliminary estimate of a gain of 244,138 in the state's population in the past ten years is borne out in the official count, Secretary of State George M. Neffner declared today.

A preliminary census survey by International News Service revealed that the 1940 unofficial count, subject to revision, was 6,890,835 as compared with 6,646,697 ten years ago.

Ohio now has 22 district congressmen and two congressmen-at-large based on the ratio of one congressman for each 279,712 persons.

Pays With Life for Killing Florida Girl

Christmas is still five months away, but there is one Mansfield youngster who wants to make sure he will not be forgotten at Christmas time, and has already written his letter to Santa Claus. According to Postmaster Herman E. Homberger, a letter addressed to Santa Claus, North Pole, was received at the post office this morning from some Mansfield child who failed to sign his name. The boy has probably ideas of doing his part in the national defense program. He requested a telescope, a knapsack, field glasses and a soldier uniform.

Mayor William J. Locke has been air-minded for a long time and has taken a keen interest in and its development, but it wasn't until yesterday that he had his first plane ride. Participating in the Junior Association of Commerce' All-Ohio air tour, the mayor was flown to Akron and back by James R. Harrington, airport manager. Locke now is considering going to Canada by plane instead of driving hundreds of miles for a few days of fishing.

Four members of the group of Mansfielders who went on the B. and O. excursion to Cedar Point yesterday found out what it was like to be hauled past their station and have to walk back. Separated from the rest of the Mansfield party, the four were so far back on the 17-car train that it was pulling out of the Mansfield station before they could reach the landing platform. Some frantic pulling of the signal cord and yelling for a conductor finally got results and the heavy train was stopped on the hill near North Lake park. The four had to scramble down an embankment and walk back to town.

H. B. Swearingen, county Farm Security administration supervisor, brought home the proof yesterday for his vacation fishing stories. Sweringen landed two monster northern pike, one weighing 15 pounds and the other a seven pounder, in northern Ontario. Swearingen said it took 20 minutes to land the big one. The fish was hooked on a spinner and live minnow.

BURGLAR FLEES

Mansfielders Awaken to Find Him in Residences.

Police today were investigating two new house breakings in which the burglar, believed to be responsible for some 20 house robberies in the past month was routed before he had time to obtain any loot.

George Skaff, 94 Orchard street, called police at 1:50 a. m. today after his wife had frightened an intruder from the house. He said he had been sleeping downstairs and was awakened by the man who fled.

M. J. Sebastian, 271 Bulkley street, told officers he also frightened an intruder from his residence last night. He said entrance was gained through a kitchen window which had been left unlocked.

Meanwhile Clarence Rooper, R. D. 5, Mansfield, reported the theft of a battery from his automobile while parked on Wayne street near East Third last night.

300 PRESENT FOR OUTING

Richland Countians of Foreign Birth Hold Naturalization Day Picnic at Park.

Nearly 300 foreign-born residents of Mansfield and Richland county and members of their families attended the first county Naturalization Day outing Sunday at Liberty park.

A number of the persons at the picnic were applicants for citizenship and 70 of them will take their final examination for naturalization papers Oct. 2 at the courthouse. The outing was sponsored as a part of the WPA adult education program.

Principal speakers at the park were Mayor William J. Locke, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, and Norman P. Henry, county naturalization clerk.

Both Mayor Locke and Judge Huston complimented the staff of instructors under the program for their work in training applicants for naturalization papers.

"Foreign-born persons often make better citizens than some of our native Americans," Judge Huston said.

He added that the staff of naturalization instructors has "afforded foreign-born residents an opportunity to see and preserve the American form of government and to be alert for any assault against the government."

Brief talks were given by C. A. Harris, sergeant-at-arms of the American Legion, Mrs. Ann Wilson, federal adult education supervisor at Columbus, and Mrs. Christine McCreary, a Mansfield adult education instructor. W. W. Loomis, supervisor of the adult education program in Richland county, presided during the program.

The picnickers sang patriotic songs, competed in contests, and played games. Prizes for contest winners were donated by Mansfield merchants.

FATHER-IN-LAW AT WOOSTER JAILED AFTER FATAL SHOOTING

(By Associated Press)

WOOSTER — (AP) — James Musser, 65, was held today following the death of his son-in-law, Darwin Davenport, 31, with a shotgun wound in his neck last night.

Sheriff Ed Mills and Prosecutor Raymond O Morgan, after investigations, said Musser admitted firing a shot at the house in nearby Shreve where both families lived.

Musser said quarrels had occurred at the home Sunday relative to Davenport and his wife, Fawn, leaving to live by themselves. He denied he entered quarrels or that he had trouble with Davenport previous to Sunday.

Officers said Musser willingly related how he took the shotgun from his room, loaded it, went to another part of the house and fired at Davenport. He said he was protecting himself because shortly before Davenport threatened him bodily harm, Sheriff Mills said.

He quoted Musser as saying Davenport made accusations that Davenport's wife kept company with another man and these accusations led to part of quarreling.

It was the first shooting homicide in Wayne county since Jan. 8, 1937.

SLAYER CALMLY MEETS DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Killer Who Posed as Movie Executive 'Glad to See' Death Date Arrive.

(By Associated Press)

RAIFORD, Fla. — Herbert Goddard, who lured 17-year-old Frances Ruth Dunn of Miami to her death by promising to get her into the movies, was executed in Florida's electric chair at state prison here at 8.33 a. m. today.

Sheriff W. H. Lawrence of Palm Beach county, in which the crime was committed, threw the switch.

The condemned man's last words were: "Goodbye Jean."

Jean Bolton of Miami, a friend of Miss Dunn, also was lured on the motor trip during which Miss Dunn was attacked and killed. Miss Bolton later was able to telephone relatives in Miami and was found on the highway north of Miami in Palm Beach county.

When the death warrant was read yesterday to the 29-year-old man of many aliases and a career strangely mixed with artistic brilliance and crime, Sheriff Lawrence quoted him as saying:

"Thank you, sheriff."

'Suffered Enough'

A little later, the officer said, Goddard told him calmly, "I have already suffered enough and I will be glad to see tomorrow come."

Goddard testified at his trial that he attacked the girls, struck Miss Dunn with a hammer, knocked her down, then shot and stabbed her. The other girl escaped.

Going to Miami in 1939, Goddard had over-awed the girls with a reputation he established as director of a federal theater project.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking For Myself.

I think no one can be as sinister as Georgie Raft walking into a night club. He always looks as though he's about to whip out a small, lethal rod. . . . I wish they'd have Count Basie's band at the ringside when Henry Armstrong fights. He twitches and jerks like a Savoy ballroom jitterbug. . . . Girl vocalists with the bands around Broadway and the outskirts are always very pretty, and I wonder what happens to all the good singers who aren't pretty—I guess they go back home and sing in the church choir. Even radio programs want the larks lovely to look at now—so they take pictures of them for the rotogravures. When you see Ginny Simms with Kay Kyser's band and Amy Arnell with Tommy Tucker's, you know why.

* * *

I wonder why they don't revive the Gershwin sonnet, "Some One to Watch Over Me" . . . I don't think any people shop-talk more than lawyers, and usually the talk is dull unless you happen to get a lawyer like Sam Leibowitz or Bernard Sandler or Jim Murray to give you "inside" stuff on famous cases.

Leo Durocher refutes the legend that all ball players look like piano movers. The Brooklyn manager looks, talks and dresses like a vaudevillian in the money.

Probably the most fascinating conversations around midnight are the ones that go on before the dressing table mirrors of the night club powder rooms. Clare Boothe gave only an inkling of them in her play, "The Women."

* * *

I wonder what authors think when they drop into that Times Square bookshop and see their books—over which they probably spent a hard year of typewriter slavery—selling for 19 cents. . . . I think those hoods on girls' dresses look wonderful and glamorous from the front—but the rear view, uh-uh.

There is a special sound to city room typewriters. In big commercial offices the touch system predominates and there is a steady ruthless precision to the typists' symphony. But the boys on the rewrite battery attack with two fingers, and they make a jagged noise I love and have never-heard anywhere else.

Imaginary conversations always intrigue me. I love to speculate on the dialogue possibilities of a tea date between Garbo and Jimmie Durante, Harpo Marx and Mrs. Harrison Williams, Tallulah Bankhead and Carrie Chapman Catt.

* * *

I'm always fascinated by the extremes an ordinarily normal person will go to get that supersuntan: Smear with gooey brown oil, then sizzle nicely in sand . . . Pet annoyance: Dialing a number and having the operator say: "What number did you dial?" You tell her and she says: "Will you please hang up and dial that number again?" And no explanation why.

You hear nice things about Sinclair Lewis. I understand he wrote the Woodstock Playhouse, a Summer theater in the Catskills, and asked that Marcella Powers, who's been touring with him, be given equal billing. Mr. Lewis may not be a great actor, but this proves he's anything but a ham.

Surf boards look thrilling, but spilling . . . I never hear children say anything about funny sheets, but grown persons are always walking up to me and saying: "Isn't it terrible what happened to Brick Bradford today?"

* * *

I love midnight snacks. I don't think they're good for one, but Chicken Rubenoia at Reuben's, steak sandwiches at "21" and chicken hash at the Stork taste wonderful at the witching hour . . . I wonder what color life guards are in the Winter time . . . There ought to be a law against those all-glass doors with no rims and nothing to indicate, until you've bumped your nose on it, that there's a door there at all.

A radio actress, in a hurry to get to another program, crashed through one of these sets of invisible doors the other day and got four front teeth knocked out. I always said streamlining was reaching a dangerous point. When you can't see a door until it's knocked you silly, I think it's time to go back to the old mahogany kind.

I thought Vivien Leigh was wonderful in "Waterloo Bridge" . . . This is the time of the year when I can really step into a cold shower without yelling like Tarzan.

* * *

I'd like to read a book about Frank Case written by Robert Benchley—no literary offense intended toward Mr. Case, who is quite good at writing his own books. . . . I like the way Bea Wain warbles her lyrics without gargling them. . . . I'm surprised at the casting of Gary Cooper in the title role for "Meet John Doe." The attractive Mr. Cooper is not exactly my idea of the Average Man, or maybe I mean the Average Man is hardly my idea of Gary Cooper.

* * *

I think the Fifth Avenue buses are one of the great privileges of being a New Yorker. Especially on a Summer night when the stars are out, but the shop windows are brighter.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"They Drive by Night." Screenplay by Jerry Wald and Richard Macauley. Directed by Raoul Walsh. Principals: Ann Sheridan, George Raft, Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page, Ida Lupino, Alan Hale.

The news in this one is that the Lupino girl creeps up on the production and bags it for her own with a performance which challenges the queen of the movies, Miss Bette Davis.

The film in which Ida, one-time exponent of giddy collegiennes and light-headed blondes, does her stuff is a melodrama of commercial trucking. It delves interestingly and with a liberal sprinkling of salty dialogue into the problems of the "independent" truck-driver (Raft) who follows the killing, sleepless trail between Los Angeles and San Francisco, his great ambition to have his own fleet. Bogart plays his brother, eventually the victim of an accident which kills Raft's hopes and sends him to work for rich, gruff and hearty Hale.

Miss Lupino has come into the picture ere this, for she is Hale's wife, dopey over Raft despite his loyalty to Hale and his interest in a roadside lunch counter waitress (Sheridan).

After Ida has murdered her husband, hoping to get Raft, she resorts in jealous fury to a "confession" pinning the blame on him. These scenes, and ensuing sequences in which the actress delineates the gradual breakdown of a neurotic mind, are forceful and memorable.

Raft is well cast, Bogart is as good as usual, and Miss Sheridan (at least until Miss Lupino takes over) is noticeably comphich. After the steal, however, Annie's just the nice girl in the background.

* * *

* * *

The man she married was an agreeable, almost-naturalized American of German birth, but in 1938 they went to Germany on business. The two of them saw Nazi Germany, with its growing power and "social progress," through different eyes. Husband (Lederer) finally became such an enthusiastic Nazi that he planned to divorce his wife to marry a Nazi blonde (Anna Sten). The wife (Bennett), seeing the "revolution" through American eyes, is sickened. It remains for the husband's father (Otto Kruger) to pin back his Nazi ears, for a pleasant foreign correspondent (Nolan) to aid the wife and child (Johnny Russell) to escape to America.

* * *

"Young People." Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie, Charlotte Greenwood.

Shirley's last for 20th Century is a pleasant dish of the old reliable hoke, the more palatable because Shirley is aided by the happily teamed Oakie and Greenwood.

It's about a couple of vaudevillians who retire to a neat, self-centered New England town in order to give their adopted child, erstwhile of their act, a "normal" life. They get the cold shoulder, but there's that hurricane again, and the hearts of gold triumph. Shirley, no longer a goldilocks, sings and dances and emotes with her usual charm, demonstrating that there's plenty of life in the old girl yet.

Indians Split; Gain

Pitchers Toss Away Second Tilt; Milnar Halts Nats In First Contest.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The razzberry season is in full swing hereabouts but the Cleveland Indians don't care for any more.

They received their largest helping of many a year as they split Sunday's double header with the Washington Senators.

Although Al Milnar hurled a masterful 6-to-3 victory and the tribe gained a half a game on the beaten Detroit Tigers, the crowd of 20,000 fans howled their derision as five pitchers tossed away the nightcap 9 to 1.

* * *

Milnar scattered seven hits in his 14th victory and all of Washington's runs were made possible by Indian misplays. A fumble by Lou Boudreau set up a run in the first inning and miscues by Outfielder Ben Chapman allowed two more in the third and fifth.

* * *

The Clevelanders cinched the game with a four-run blast in their half of the third frame, during which they rapped out five singles and sent Walter Masterson to the showers Four more singles in the fifth inning yielded the final two runs.

Starting the second game, the Senators led off with a double, two singles and a triple, yielding three runs, and that was enough for Al Smith.

Mel Harder replaced him. The first four batters got hits in the third inning and Harder went to the showers. Joe Dobson gave up a single with the bases loaded and Washington piled up four runs in that frame.

Dobson gave up another run before joining the parade. Johnny Humphries held the Senators scoreless for three innings but the Senators got to Bill Zuber for one more in the ninth.

* * *

Lanky Sid Hudson mystified the Indians and let them down with six hits.

* * *

Unbeaten Hermans Register 13th Win

BULLETIN

The Sons of Herman will go after their 14th win of the year when they tackle the Willard All-Stars at Willard at 6:15 p. m. today, Business Manager Frank Villella announced at noon today. Herman players are requested to report at the Corner Lunch at 5:30 p. m. today.

NO MATTER what happens to the Sons of Herman—there's one thing about the club—it can come from behind to win.

* * *

Trailing by a 3 to 1 count going into the sixth, the unbeaten Hermans punched over three tallies to forge ahead and register their 13th straight win by tripping the touted Massillon, 5 to 3, before 500 fans at Liberty park yesterday.

* * *

It was the same old story—hitting power and smart base running—that enabled Manager Frank Beeber's crack combine to finish on top.

The Hermans, who will meet the Mansfield Wrecking company All-Stars in a five-game series for the city softball championship, were held to five bingles but all the hits were long clouts with runners on the paths

Taking advantage of five errors, the Hermans, one of the few unbeaten teams in the state, played fine defensive ball behind Jimmy Fullager, who gave up 11 hits.

Massillon, fighting to hand the Hermans their first defeat, jumped into the lead with a three-run attack in the third, but from there in Fullager settled down and was invincible when the Massillon outfit placed men on the base paths.

After taking the lead, the Hermans made sure of the victory by adding another marker in the eighth

Yesterday marked the first time Al Stickler star gardener, performed with the club. He failed to get a hit, but sparkled in the outfield

The Hermans are not expected to play any games this week until the series opens Thursday, but Beeber stated today that the club will hold daily workouts to be in top form against the All-Stars.

Gerald Schaeffer paced the Hermans at the plate with a double and single.

Ohio Semi-Pro Teams Riot

Police Called to Protect Ump After Decision.

SPRINGFIELD—(AP)—The Ohio semi-pro baseball tournament enters its final round today after a player-umpire dispute ended in a semi-final forfeit and a near riot last night.

* * *

Police were called to protect Umpire John West from irate Springfield National Supply players who charged him following his declaration of a forfeit to the Columbus Federal Glass team during the eighth inning of a crucial game.

* * *

West called the forfeit when two Springfield players, who disputed a close decision, refused to obey his order to leave the field The Columbus team was leading 2 to 0 at the time.

The forfeit was the second loss for Springfield and put the team out of the running

* * *

Federal Glass plays Lancaster Hocking Glass today in the losers' bracket final and the winner meets Springfield Crowell-Colliers, the only undefeated team in the double-elimination event.

Crowell-Colliers beat Federal Glass yesterday 10 to 7 while Lancaster beat Troy, 7 to 1, and Columbus Bolt Works, 8 to 0.

* * *

How Wagner will use the players is not known, but fans can be sure of seeing every man on the roster in action during the series. There will be no admission charge at the games, but a collection will be taken up to pay for the trophy and a banquet for the players of both teams.

Hudlin Hunting For Another Job Again.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Pitcher Willis Hudlin, 34-year-old veteran of major league competition, went hunting for another spot in baseball today. Signed by the New York Giants after being released by Washington, Hudlin appeared in only one game for the National League club. This would have been his 15th season in the majors. He was with the Cleveland Indians for 11 years.

Ever Hear of Ruth, Mister?

According to the censor-approved caption accompanying this picture from England: "Colleagues cheer as one of their comrades takes a swipe at a ball during a baseball match." From our experience at watching batters swing, we'd say this fellow is really hitting one. The soldiers are Canadians, awaiting orders in England.

Newsom Learns You Can't Win 'Em All

By JUDSON BAILEY,
(AP) Sports Writer)

"YOU can't win 'em all," they say in sports, but Big Buck Newsom with the great heart isn't one to be philosophical about defeat.

Up until the 11th inning yesterday he still thought he could beat any team in baseball at any time.

* * *

It was a combination of circumstances that undermined him after 13 consecutive victories and gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 9-5 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

The temperature in Briggs Stadium was over 90 degrees and Newsom was making his first effort since suffering a broken thumb 11 days previously. He was strong and wild at the start, fanning ten and walking seven, but along the way Bobo simply melted down.

The defeat lost Detroit half a game of its American League lead as the Cleveland Indians divided a doubleheader with the Washington Senators, the Indians taking the first 6-3 and losing the second 9-1.

The New York Yankees staved off the spectre of the second division by splitting two games with the Chicago White Sox. It took a spectacular home run barrage for the world champions to win the first game 10-9 Charley Keller hit three home runs, Joe DiMaggio two and Babe Dahlgren one.

In the second game the Yankees made four errors and were stifled by the five-hit flinging of Lefty Thornton Lee as the Sox won 8-4.

The Boston Red Sox swept two games from the St. Louis Browns, 3-1 and 13-10. In the first game the Bosox were held to five hits, but got 22 in the nightcap.

The Cincinnati Reds gave up a game of their big lead in the National League by splitting a bargain bill at Philadelphia, the Reds taking the opener 7-2 and losing the afterpiece 4-1.

The Brooklyn Dodgers' twin triumphs, 3-0, and 7-4, ended a six game losing streak for Brooklyn and four-game winning string for the Cards.

* * *

The surging Pittsburgh Pirates swept two from the Boston Bees 5-2 and 7-3 to pass the Cards and take fifth place while dropping Boston into the cellar.

* * *

The New York Giants ended a three-day hitting famine by getting ten safeties in beating the Chicago Cubs 8-4.

200 Shooters To Compete

Rifle and Pistol Meet Opens At Mt. Gilead Saturday.

MT. GILEAD—(AP)—The Dayton Rifle club and the Summit County Rifle league will face fields twice as large as last year in defending the championships of their respective divisions in the annual rifle team matches of the Ohio Rifle and Pistol association here Saturday and Sunday.

William E. Kelly of Akron, the association's small-bore director, estimated this year's matches would draw 200 shooters representing 50 teams.

A club team match at 50 meters is on the Saturday program, while club matches with metallic and any sights over the Dewar course will be held Sunday. The state's nine leagues will send 10-man teams over the Dewar course for the all-star league title Sunday.

Pandas Pound Three Pitchers To Score Wins

Laurila, Benton Fail In Opener; Angaran Drops Nightcap; Lima Wins, 12-11 and 7-2.

MANSFIELD is still in third place in the Ohio State league championship—but the pace-making Lima Pandas didn't aid in helping the team retain the position.

The Braves, who entertain the Tiffin Mudhens at the Fairground in a doubleheader tonight, invaded Lima yesterday and left the city with two more defeats marked up against them.

Manager Dewey Stover saw three of his moundsmen face the strong Pandas as the Braves dropped 12 to 11 and 7 to 2 decisions.

Pilot Stover will nominate Bob Arnold, righthander, to handle the duties in the first game against the Mudhens at 7 p. m. today. Rex Benton may toil in the second contest.

* * *

The Brave hurlers couldn't do any good yesterday. In the first game the club was ahead and before Stover could replace George Laurila in the eighth inning Lima had pushed over six runs. Then in the nightcap Lima put the game in the ice box with four tallies in the fifth.

* * *

Mansfield was enjoying a 9 to 6 advantage in the first setto and it looked like a victory until Lima collected its six runs.

In the second affray, however, Lima went ahead with three in the first and then with the score favering the club, 3 to 2, made four more runs while Ed Evans was whitewashing the Braves.

Tony Angaran worked in the second tussle and gave the Pandas seven hits, while the Braves were securing five.

Brave officials today sent out a call for pitchers as the club battles to retain third place Although Fremont, which holds the next berth, lost to Fostoria 11 to 8 yesterday, the Braves only hold a two-game lead.

* * *

It'll be "Boy Scout" night at the Fair park tonight and all scouts will be admitted free.

* * *

Harry Seigbert led the Braves at the plate in the opener with three hits, including a double, and Don Wentz collected two bingles in the second tilt.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Do you like hypocrisy, folks? Come in and cut yourself a slice. Do you like honesty? Well, come in and cut yourself a slice of that, too, because they are today's subjects.

* * *

Let us take hypocrisy first, because I am more familiar with that topic.

* * *

Racing started at Saratoga today and the gambling that goes with racing is the only reason on earth for Saratoga's existence. The town is filled with well-advertised and state-supported baths which are said to have healing powers for such assorted ailments as rickets, lumbago, gout, sciatica, rheumatism and the plain and fancy varieties of beri-beri. But don't let the state take you in for a sucker. When you go to Saratoga you go to play the horses.

To consider the subject of hypocrisy let us consider the ban on roulette, canfield, craps, slot machines and chuck-a-luck cages. New York state officials have decided that gambling on horses isn't really gambling at all, but merely a pleasant and healthy pastime from which the state collects five cents of every dollar transaction.

That five per cent cut of the play is my idea of why they are saying today—with emphasis for the first time in decades—that the lid is on at Saratoga. Every dollar bet away from the track costs the state of New York a nickel.

Now, as for honesty. Let us consider Maxmillian Adelbert Baer. He likes a dollar just as much as you do. He undoubtedly is as vain as you are and as rampant with conceit. He has a baby and a wife to support and to hear him tell it he is forced to support them in a style in which neither of them ever was accustomed. But he knows where to draw the line. And it is no color line when he said he wouldn't fight Joe Louis.

* * *

Two weeks after he fought Louis the first time, Max and I had dinner together. He frankly admitted Louis never did knock him out. But he was honest enough to admit that the reason the knockout never came was that he quit before the final blow was delivered.

* * *

That is honesty. There is no reason in the world that Baer, if he were dishonest, couldn't make at least $50,000 by taking on Louis again and just falling with the first punch. He wouldn't even have to make it look good because Louis already has made so many fighters look bad. It would be easy.

Amrine's 'Angels' Make The Grade

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Supt. W. F. Amrine's "Angels" of the London prison farm are softball champions of the state prison system today.

The "Angels" whipped Warden Frank D. Henderson's Ohio penitentiary "Hurricanes" for the second straight time Saturday, 4 to 1, at O. Henry field in the prison.

The two teams finish their two-out-of-three-game series next Saturday.

THEATERS

Comedy and Mystery.

A new mirthful mystery picture featuring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard is showing at the Ohio. The title is "The Ghost Breakers" who are people who rid haunted houses of these pests. Miss Goddard plays the role of a wealthy girl living in New York who inherits an historic castle on an island in Cuba. Bob is a gossipy radio commentator. After the two meet complications develop for both of them. Included in the supporting cast are Paul Lukas, Richard Carlson, Anthony Quinn and Tom Dugan.

Mystery Drama of the Sea.

"The Phantom Raiders" showing at the Madison is a fast-moving mystery drama featuring the adventures of Nick Carter, famous detective, who goes to the Canal Zone for a vacation and finds himself in the midst of an international ship-wrecking plot. Walter Pidgeon plays the role of Nick Carter and is supported by the following cast. Florence Rice, Nat Pendleton, John Carrell and Donald Meek. The co-feature is "My Love Came Back," an entertaining comedy featuring Olivia de Havilland and Jeffrey Lynn.

* * *

Mae West and W. C. Fields.

Starring together for the first time Mae West and W. C. Fields are now seen in "My Little Chickadee" at the Ritz. It is a roaring comedy of frontier days presenting Mae as a glamorous Chicago night club entertainer who comes to the Western town of Greasewood City and captivates the hardriding, quick shooting gentlemen of the wild and woolly community. Mickey Rooney is seen as "Young Tom Edison" in the co-feature. Fay Bainter, Virginia Weidler, George Bancroft and Eugene Pallette are in the supporting cast.

* * *

Girl-Shy Joe Penner.

"Millionaire Playboy," starring Joe Penner, is a hilarious comedy of errors in which a girl-shy young man believes a group of dazzling dolls are old women with their faces lifted, and the cuties think the shy boy is a notorious glamour boy. Joe is taken to a mountain resort where he is to be cured of a strange affliction—hiccuping whenever a girl kisses him. The co-feature is "Vigil In the Night" with Carole Lombard and Brian Aherne.

It's The Heat, Fans Claim, As Cincinnati Splits With Phils

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, who have been showing their heels with plenty of distance to spare to the other clubs in the National league, shared a somewhat universal hope for relief from high temperatures as they faced the first of a three-game series with the Giants today.

* * *

Whitey Moore, trying for his fifth victory, was called to the mound by the Rhinelanders to cross curves with King Carl Hubbell for the Giants.

* * *

The Reds swept a three-game series from the third-place Giants last week, eliminating them for a time as a potent pennant threat. They went on to brush aside Brooklyn, in second place, for an eight game lead but the best they could do with the Phillies, who they found in the cellar, was to break even. Fans said it was the heat.

The Reds won the opener of a double header in Philadelphia yesterday 7-2 but lost the nightcap 4-1 as the temperature soared to 100 degrees in Shibe park.

Jim Turner permitted only seven hits for his sixth straight win as the Reds socked three Philly pitchers for 14 safeties in the opener. Shortstop Bobbie Eragan homered for the Phils in the second inning. In the third he pulled the ancient hidden ball trick on the usually alert Bill Werber to tag him out at second base.

* * *

Successive home runs by Ival Goodman and Frank McCormick accounted for three runs in the fifth inning, however.

* * *

A series of singles gave the Phils three runs in the first inning of the second game, which were enough, with seven-hit pitching, to give Cy Blanton his fourth victory and set Bucky Walters, the ace Cincinnati hurler, down in defeat. Walters, who was trying for his 16th triumph of the season, gave up seven hits in seven innings.

Beer Pitches Three-Hitter

Liberty Park Scores 4 to 2 Win Over Little Sandusky.

The three-hit pitching of Pete Beer, Liberty Park's ace hurler, proved too much for the Little Sandusky nine yesterday as the Mansfielders trounced the Little Sandusky kites 4 to 2 at Liberty Park.

* * *

Beer fanned six of the 31 batters who faced him and out of the three hits netted off him none was more than a single. Taylor was on the mound for the visitors, allowing the Mansfield club 12 hits.

* * *

Liberty Park scored once in the first frame, one in the fourth, and twice in the fifth for its four-run total. Pete Musille got the longest hit of the game, a double.

Liberty Park will play its next N. C. O. league tussle at Marysville Sunday, August 4, when they meet the Marysville team in a doubleheader.

LEADING STOCK ISSUES DRIFT NARROW ROUTE

Market Traders Find Little Inspiration in Domestic or Foreign News.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock market traders found little inspiration in either the foreign or domestic news today and leading issues drifted over a narrow route.

Given mild support were General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, General Electric Du Pont, Loft, North American and American Water Works.

Bonds were fairly steady and commodities a trifle mixed.

Much interest was shown in the General Motors statement disclosing that while earnings were exceptionally high for the first six months, net for the second quarter was cut to $1.02 a share from $1.06 in the like 1939 months. Reasons given for this discrepancy was the necessity for increasing contingency reserves due to war hazards, higher taxes and other charges.

Survey Shows Eighth Graders Don't Know About Dates.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State university, seeking a way to help high school students solve their personal problems, discovered in a survey that seventh graders have trouble handling money, eighth graders need advice on "dates" and social activity, ninth graders become concerned about personal popularity and 11th and 12th graders begin thinking of vocations and world affairs.

The university questioned 256 students in its model junior and senior high schools to determine how discussions of personal problems could be fitted into the regular curriculum.

O'DANIEL LEADS IN TEXAS VOTE

Makes Good on Theme Song, Eliminates Need of Run-Off Election.

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS—Lee O'Daniel, Texas' radio operator governor, appears to have piled up enough votes in Saturday's first Democratic primary to bear out the campaign tune, "there ain't gonna be no run-off." He wrote the song for his hillbilly band.

The former flour salesman today was far in front of five other gubernatorial candidates, having 53.4 per cent of the approximately 875,000 votes tabulated by the Texas election bureau.

O'Daniel, who needed more than 50 per cent of the votes to escape a run-off, said in Austin that he considered the triumph "not a personal one but one for the common citizens of Texas, of which I am a part."

The 50-year-old governor may have received a larger majority than in his amazing first campaign in 1938. In the primary two years ago, he was given slightly above 51 per cent of the vote.

Returns from 242 of the state's 254 counties, including 74 complete, gave:

O'Daniel 467,503; State Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson,185,423; Highway Commissioner Harry Hines, 95,285; former Governor Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson, 72,392; Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler, 48,546, and Cyclone Davis, jr., 3,853.

Democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Texas.

Sen. Tom Connally was renominated for his third six-year term by an overwhelming majority over two opponents.

Churchill Prepares Important Speech.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill was reported today to be preparing an important speech, for delivery in the house of commons tomorrow, on Britain's foreign policy.

In what would be his first big outline of foreign policy since he assumed the prime ministry May 10, Churchill was expected to answer Adolf Hitler's recent speech demanding that Britain give up the war on pain of being destroyed and to discuss relations with Japan, Rumania, Spain and the Balkans.

It was believed likely that Churchill would open a debate on foreign policy which would turn into a secret one. The government was considering asking a secret session immediately after his speech, so members could air any grievances, and seek any information they desired, without risking a leak of valuable news to Germany and Italy.

Long range policies, such as the problems of post-war Europe, American and Asiatic federations intended to safeguard peace and stimulate economic exchanges, may be discussed at the secret session.

It was reported that some members, including Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war secretary, David Lloyd George, war time prime minister, and Earl Winterton, former deputy air minister, would oppose a secret session on the ground that secret sessions encourage rumors.

Washington Views Europe's Food Status.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — If Europe's food supplies are "proportionately distributed" during the coming fall and winter, the agriculture department forecast today, there will be no abnormal shortage and "certainly no widespread starvation" among the war-torn peoples.

It raised the question, however, as to whether available supplies could be distributed so as to prevent hunger.

"Communications have been disrupted, distribution disorganized, and people in great numbers have left their homes," said a report issued by the department's foreign service.

"In the larger cities of the recently invaded countries and in other areas where refugees are gathered, food supplies soon may be inadequate. Even where food supplies are for sale, economic dislocation leaves many without the money to buy. The situation is further aggravated by the fact that the armies of occupation will subsist largely if not wholly on the supplies of the invaded countries."

CLOSE TO PEAK

National Income High for First Six Months, Climbs.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The commerce department reported today that the national income for the six months of 1940 was within one per cent of the comparable 1937 period, the peak "recovery" year.

June payments, reflecting a rise in industrial activity as well as a seasonal gain in dividend and interest disbursements, reached $6,202,000,000. This was $551,000,000 more than in May.

For the first half of 1940, total income payments were $35,338,000,000, a gain of $1,657,000,000 or five per cent over the 1939 period.

OK DUE TODAY ON DEFENSE PACT

Pan-American Conference In Final Session; Unanimous Approval Foreseen.

here to take its place in history alongside the Monroe doctrine was completed early today, when the peace commission of the conference approved the draft of the convention covering the legal phase of the plan.

The plan itself, embodied in a draft resolution called the "Act of Havana," provides that the American Republics may establish "regions of provisional administration" in any areas now held by non-American nations which "are in danger of becoming the subject-matter of exchange of territories or sovereignty."

Such administration, which may be put into effect by any one or any group of the American nations if the emergency is too great to permit consultation among all 21 members, would be established only on the understanding that when the emergency passed, affected regions would be returned to their original status or organized into autonomous territories.

Successful drafting of the "Act of Havana" and the companion convention was regarded as a considerable personal triumph for U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Hull, when he left the commission room shortly after midnight, obviously was pleased at having finished the tedious task of phrasing the possessions project to everyone's satisfaction.

"I am glad to say that our work is finished and our docket is cleared," he said.

Colombia allowed quick action about midnight last night when she withdrew an amendment she had submitted to the commission Sunday afternoon on details of the administration of protectorates over European possessions in the Americas. Lopez De Mesa, chief of the Colombian delegation, said it was withdrawn to speed final action.

The "Act of Havana," noting that conquest of European-held possessions in the Americas may be attempted "as a result of the present European war" and thus may imperil "the essence and form of American institutions" and that inter-American solidarity "demands a policy of vigilance and defense," points to the "grave menace" of these colonies becoming "strategic centers of aggression against the American continent."

It then declares:

"When American islands of areas at present held by non-American nations are in danger of becoming the subject-matter of exchange of territories or sovereignty, the American republics x x x may establish regions or provisional administration."

Such administration would be exercised with the dual purpose of contributing to the safety and defense of the continent and for the common political and social benefit of the said areas."

The act provides for the formation of an emergency committee of 21 members, one from each of the nations which will be consulted immediately as soon as two-thirds of its members have been appointed by their governments.

In an emergency, however, it stipulates that "any of the American republics, individually or jointly with others, shall have the right to act in a manner required for its defense or the defense of the continent."

In addition to the report of the joint commission, today's plenary session also will act upon reports of the neutrality and economic committees.

ranged for this year's fair will attract the largest crowds in the history of the fair," Wolf said.

"We have built a program of top notch entertainment to replace the harness races which we cancelled this year because lack of patronage in past years indicated that harness races in Mansfield may be a thing of the past. Attendance figures have shown us that fairgoers prefer spectacular grandstand shows and we have obtained some of the best entertainment available in that line for this year's fair."

manager, and was accompanied by Mayor William J. Locke.

City officials and leading Mansfielders advocated improved and additional air facilities for the city during the speaking program. Miss Haberbuchler was presented with the air trophy by Harry Hollingsworth, president of the J. A. C.

Mayor Locke reviewed the history of the airport and told the crowd that city officials are "anxious" to get under way a $40,000 National Youth administration project, calling for improvements at the field.

Harrington stressed the importance of obtaining major improvements at the airfield "before it is too late."

"It is important that the city of Mansfield acts quickly before nearby cities provide air facilities that will shove Mansfield into the background," he told the listeners.

He cited a similar experience in which Mansfield lost Big Four railroad facilities to Crestline years ago because persons here had not taken prompt action to gain the facilities.

J. Gilbert Baird, a member of the United Airlines 100,000-mile Flying club, advocated improvements, including hard-surfaced runways at the port, so that the city "will be prepared for main line traffic when commercial airlines begin stopping in smaller cities."

He asked Mansfielders to get behind the proposed one-mill levy, part of which would furnish $5,000 annually for airport maintenance, when submitted to them this fall at the election.

Other speakers included Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton, city councilman and J. A. C. officials.

Gov. John W. Bricker addressed the fliers at a banquet Saturday night in New Philadelphia. It was there that "Miss All-Ohio Air Tour" was selected from the ten cities visited.

Miss Betty Collins, 18, of Lima, O., was chosen.

Yesterday, the entourage stopped at Alliance, O., for a visit to an airplane factory and a dinner at the country club. Then they hopped to Akron.

Other cities visited included Toledo, Lima, Columbus, Portsmouth, Huntington, W. Va. and Athens, O.

The almost nation-wide heat wave had claimed more than 600 lives today, 303 persons succumbing to heat prostrations and 325 from drowning, the Associated Press reported.

It was still hot today from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic coast, with Phillipsburg, Kan., reporting a reading of 110 degrees, highest in the nation.

Washington, D. C., reported 101 Sunday, while St. Louis and Kansas City had 100, Philadelphia, 99, and Cleveland, 95. Bucyrus reported 98, highest reading in northern Ohio.

Twelve Ohioans were drowned over the week-end while seeking relief from the heat, bringing the total for the past 10 days in the state to 44. Cincinnati alone has had 12 of the heat fatalities.

The weatherman explained that the mass of cool air that was expected to bring relief from the heat by Saturday was blocked out temporarily by another heat blast from the west. In Ohio and sections of the east stagnant air made the heat almost unbearable in cities.

YOU can get a personal loan —without red tape or delay —if you can repay in small monthly installments. All you do to apply for a loan at Household is to acquaint us with your problem. You need no bankable security—no endorsers or guarantors.

You may repay your loan on any of the schedules shown in the table below. Thus you may choose the payment plan which best fits your own needs and income.

Payments to fit your purse

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see, for instance, that monthly installments of $9.46 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for thirty months will also repay a $100 loan.

You will note that the sooner you repay the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.26 each, or a total of only $105.04, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full.

WE GUARANTEE the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. You will pay less if you pay your loan ahead of time since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 2% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $300 and 1½% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $300. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law.

OHIO — R. E. HENDERSON, PRESIDENT

Same rate to everyone

Installments shown in the table repay everything. These installments include charges at Household's rate of 2% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $300, and 1½% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $300. This rate is substantially less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law. Household has only this one rate —the same for everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, JULY 29, 1940.

It may be that we Americans have been enjoying our peaceful freedom on borrowed time.

As nearly as can be recalled, a platform was adopted at both the Philadelphia and Chicago conventions.

Speed limits should be indicated by street signs—how was the driver of car bearing license number VW-407, eastbound on West Third street at 8 a. m. today, to know that the speed limit on that street is 25 miles an hour?

Your Boys and Girls Will Fly

MANSFIELD'S rapid increase in "air-mindedness" was strongly in evidence yesterday afternoon as thousands of men, women, children and infants in arms assembled at the airport, and vicinity, to witness the arrival and departure of a flotilla of 31 planes which were returning to Cleveland after visiting a number of northern Ohio cities.

As has been this city's custom in other progressive steps, the attitude of Mansfield toward aviation has run along conservative lines, with a truly Missourian "show me" position in the matter of providing adequate airport facilities.

The situation, until recently, was not unlike that of around 25 years ago when the "good roads" movement was beginning to take form and conscientious objectors based their opposition on the idea that hard-surfaced roads were a foolish waste of money which would benefit only the few owners of automobiles.

Although everyone may not realize it, progress in the practical application of air transportation has been even more rapid than in the early stages of the motor industry and young people of today are growing into calm acceptance of air travel, and learning to pilot a plane, instead of considering aviation as a novelty limited to only a few exceptionally venturesome persons.

Like it or not, present-day parents of boys and girls of school and college age, are being required to adjust their thinking to acceptance of the idea that, within another decade, a young person who has not ridden in an airplane will be as exceptional as the occasional older person who has never been on a train, in an automobile, or seen a picture show.

It was only yesterday, for instance, that Mayor William J. Locke made his first airplane trip, while to "Bud" Harrington, aviation enthusiast, airport manager and competent instructor, the journey to Akron and return was as casual as was the automobile trip which thousands of Mansfielders made to the airport — and the danger in the air, with a skillful pilot, was probably not as great as on the congested highways below.

It is not only because Mansfield must keep abreast of other cities that Municipal airport should be improved and placed in first class condition as quickly as possible—it is also to feel assured that the young people of this city who are attracted to flying shall have the best possible facilities to secure training that will properly prepare them to meet later requirements, when piloting a plane may become little less common than driving an automobile now is.

Nor should it be forgotten that Mansfield's location is such as to make this the logical northcentral Ohio city for development of east-west and north-south commercial air traffic, which can be made to mean much to the future of this city if the present opportunity is not muffed, as was the earlier day experience in connection with the Big Four railroad, which was originally planned to run through Mansfield.

From the customary small beginning by a few enthusiasts about a decade ago, interest in aviation has grown in Mansfield until now members of council, other city officials and a large percentage of Mansfield residents recognize the importance of proceeding, as rapidly as possible, with essential airport improvements.

Along this line it is interesting to note that the current issue of Life magazine contains several pages of pictures of various types of private planes, stating cost, cruising speed and range of each, much as is regularly done with new models of automobiles. Comment: "As casually as commuters catching the 8:15 train. Long Islanders step into their waiting planes each morning and fly to their New York offices."

This Is County Fair Week

HERALDED as "the biggest ever held," the Richland county fair will open Wednesday and continue through Saturday, with day and evening attractions claimed to be superior to any heretofore offered.

While recent years have brought a modernizing of county fairs, with considerable broadening of entertainment features, emphasis on exhibits of farm products and livestock has been properly retained, for it is only in their recognition and encouragement of the importance of agriculture that continuance of county fairs can be justified.

Drawing its name from the rich land for which this county has long been noted, and with its rural sections peopled by many prosperous and progressive farmers, there is every reason to feel that the county fair can be made to play an increasingly important part in stimulating even greater agricultural interest and activity in this part of Ohio.

As heretofore, special attention is to be given to exhibits by farm boys and girls of the 4-H clubs of the county and many features of the fair will be along lines intended to be of interest to young people.

Large attendance is important to the success of a county fair, as the fairground provides a convenient meeting place for friends who do not have opportunity to see each other often and are thus given a chance to have pleasant little visits with scores of acquaintances.

With rural and urban co-operation this week's county fair can be made so successful, in patronage and interest, that those in charge will be encouraged to plan for even more elaborate attractions and exhibits next year and thereafter.

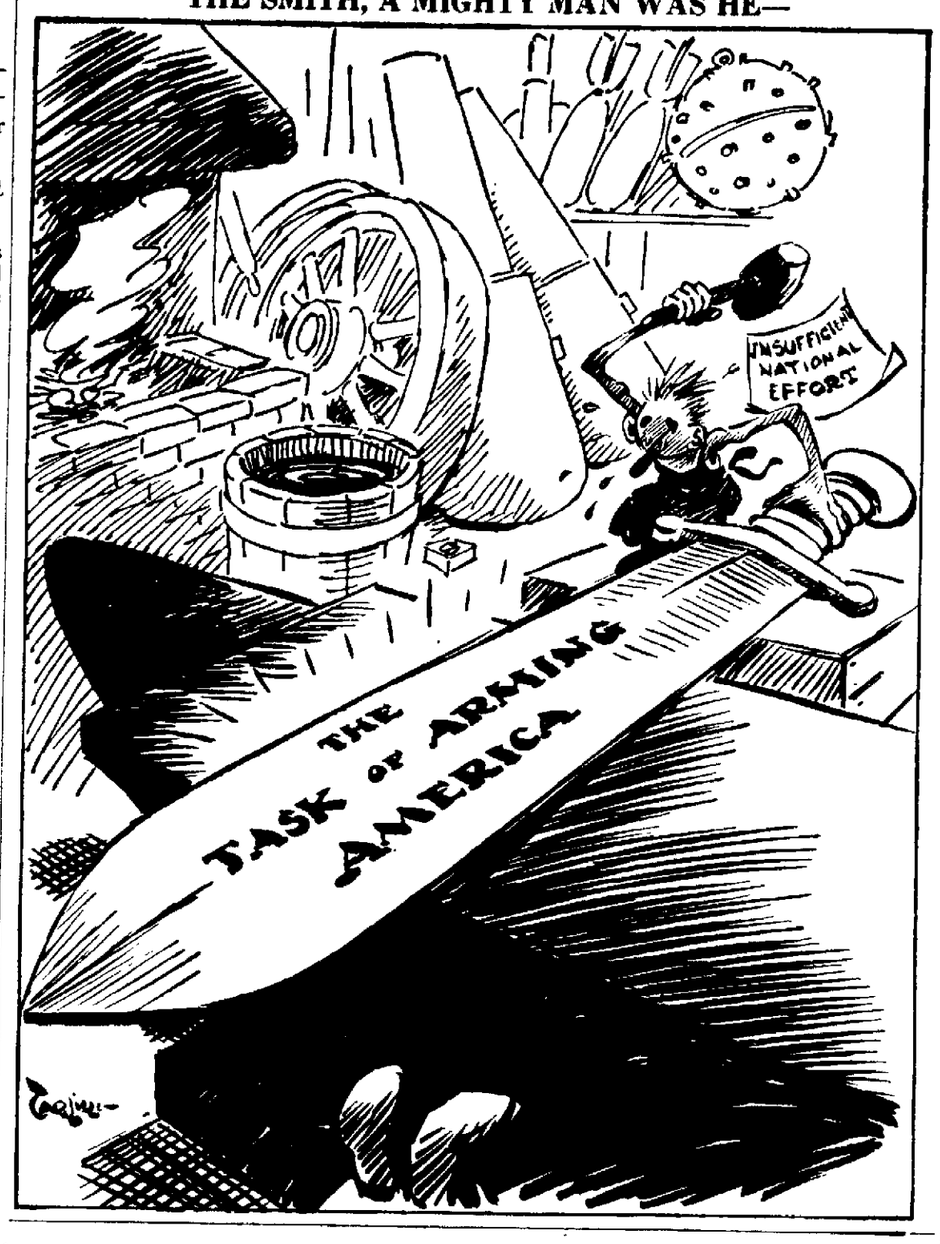
Many New Low-Priced Homes

BUILDING of homes is at the highest point since 1929, according to recent figures. Residential building in 37 eastern states in the first six months of 1940 totaled $690,572,000, a seven per cent increase over the first half of 1939.

Incidentally, there is a greater percentage increase of dwelling units as compared with the dollar increase, which indicates the increased volume of low-priced houses and the development of a low-priced market.

This is a change for the better, provided the low-priced houses are genuinely economical. That is, provided they are of sound construction and good materials.

THE SMITH, A MIGHTY MAN WAS HE—



'Smear' Campaign Is Predicted

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

POLITICIANS, back in Washington for the reassembling of congress, still are so badly disorganized by the two conventions' results that a lot of them admit they hardly know how they do classify partisanly.

Wendell L. Willkie always was a Democrat until recently. The Republicans nominated him for president. Henry A. Wallace was a Republican until a few years ago. The Democrats nominated him for vice president.

Old-line Democrats deny that President Roosevelt's a Democrat. Instead, they say he's a New Dealer—altogether a different thing, they insist, from either a Democrat or a Republican.

Charles L. McNary's label is Republican alright. But is the Republican party still the Republican party? Hasn't it become old-line Democratic? Anyway, quite a few of the old liners wanted to indorse Republican Nominee Willkie on their Democratic ticket. And, as McNary is the running mate of Willkie, doesn't that make him an old-line Democrat?

Willkie says he never left the Democratic party; it left him, so he'd no option but to become a Republican. But Wallace, on being deserted by the Republican party, to which he'd belonged, didn't say he was becoming a Democrat; what he said he was becoming was a New Dealer.

If there were three clean-cut parties (Democratic, Republican and New Deal), with three sets of candidates, the situation would not be so puzzling.

But the three are completely scrambled, with only two sets of candidates.

A Smear Campaign.

That it will be a smear campaign is evident from the outset.

The Willkieites (whether Republicans, old-time Democrats or what-not) are going to go after President Roosevelt on grounds of his third-term candidacy. He'll be accused of leading a movement in the direction of a dictatorship's establishment.

And Willkie already is being attacked as a power magnate.

New Deal policies will be an issue, but it will be a bit clouded by the consideration that the Willkie people hesitate to say that they weren't largely meritorious in principle. They'll say that they've been frightfully bungled in administration, but they'll hesitate to give an impression that Willkieism is reactionary.

Both sides will be pro-defense. The Willkie folk will accuse the New Dealers of spending a maximum amount of money on it for a minimum of results, but they'll have to acquiesce in the essential program.

Both sides will be for American non-participation in overseas warfare. The Democrats will point out that they adopted a stronger platform plank on the subject than the Republicans did, but the average voter doesn't pay much attention to platforms. They're too wordy and tiresome to study.

Third termism and power are going to be the principal topics of campaign oratory and printed propaganda.

Mixed-Up Candidacies.

Up until the very last minute (even after the Roosevelt nomination) I talked with numerous anti-third termers who predicted that F. D. R. wouldn't accept the draft—that he'd announce that all he wanted was an indorsement, but preferred not to run again.

Deeming it desirable to do so, Roosevelt had no choice but to disappoint this element. However, he undoubtedly could have prevented the vice presidential nomination of Henry A. Wallace.

Now, Wallace is a corking good New Dealer. He has a big farm following. He's a strong campaigner. But he's as much a Republican as Willkie is a Democrat.

When the Republicans nominated Willkie, it looked like a fair conclusion that many a Republican would resent having a Democrat at the head of his party's ticket—that the G. O. P. would lose a goodly number of votes thereby.

Now, though, the Democrats have Wallace, a Republican on THEIR ticket. Yes, and a couple of 'em in their cabinet. They're not in much of a position to talk about Willkie, as an ex-Democratically Republican nominee.

How To Cook Frozen Foods.

—By DR. CLENDENING

FROZEN FOODS are being used in ever increasing quantities. In 1937, 273,000,000 pounds of quick frozen foods were shipped, and in 1938, 480,000,000 pounds were estimated. Half of these are vegetables, a quarter chicken and fish, and a little fruit, of which more than half was strawberries. The process makes many more foods available for the average table all over the continent. It affords the consumer fresh material, free from edible waste, and recent studies have shown that such foods preserve their nutritive values.

The germ content of quick-frozen foods is greatly reduced. If the frozen foods are held in storage at temperatures below 32° F. there is little danger of contamination, but on thawing, the organisms increase rapidly. Frozen foods should therefore be cooked without thawing.

A report of Dr. Mary Swartz Rose to the Council on Foods of the American Medical Association states that the cooking of quick-frozen foods presents no special problems. "Practically all products may be put on to cook while still solidly frozen or immediately after partial thawing. Quick-frozen vegetables require only one-half to two-thirds as much time as fresh."

Holds Vitamins.

Vitamins are conserved by quick-freezing.

Vitamin A values in foods are conserved by storage at low temperature, out of contact with light, in a practically impervious package conditions which should prevail in the case of quick-frozen foods until delivery to the consumer. No loss of this vitamin has been observed in samples of peas held in storage for as long as eleven months at 40° F.

Vitamin B-1 (thiamin) is not affected by the freezing per se but considerable loss may occur in the blanching of vegetables which have a tendency to lose Vitamin B-1 in cooking. To conserve Vitamin B-1 in quick-frozen vegetables, the blanching time should be as short as is compatible with a product satisfactory in other respects.

Little, if any loss of Vitamin G (riboflavin) has been observed in the quick-frozen vegetables investigated, viz: peas, lima beans asparagus and spinach.

Vitamin C (ascorbic acid) in fruits appears to be conserved by quick-freezing and storage at low temperatures.

Doing—and Looking—Her Best.

The fact that American women athletes today no longer "look the part," no longer have the bulging muscles and parched complexions typical of their predecessors a generation or two ago, just goes to show how quickly the American woman learns to take new roles in her stride.

The same kind of adaptation is shown in other fields, where hitherto untried occupations find women displaying skill and efficiency without losing femininity. It's not that women are foresaking the home, where their arts retain all their old supremacy, but that the home has become only one of many fields where their abilities and aptitudes are useful.

And while women have been educating themselves in new functions, Americans as a whole have been educated in the value and importance of women's brains—and charm—and the contribution they make in combination. America certainly is a leader in successfully applying the theory that a woman can do her best in whatever realm she chooses, and still look her best.—Minneapolis Star-Journal

Bullitt Drafted Soviet Blast; Japan Preparing to Join Hitler

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Inside fact regarding the scathing state department blast at Soviet Russia for seizing the Baltic states was that it was drafted largely in Hyde Park, and that Ambassador William Bullitt had a lot to do with the drafting. Under Secretary of State Welles merely acted as the mouthpiece.

The state department had written a statement criticizing Russia's seizure of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, and sent it to Hyde Park for approval. Here Bill Bullitt, ex-ambassador to Russia who now hates everything about it, completely rewrote the statement, putting in some of its most pungent phrases.

The incident is significant, for two reasons: 1st, it illustrates how the president and his favorite ambassador act as a super-state department; and 2nd, it indicates that despite the increasing belligerency of Japan, the Roosevelt administration is loath to warm up to its most logical ally in the Pacific, Soviet Russia.

The closeness of the Bullitt-Roosevelt tie-up has become rather embarrassing to the rest of the state department. For instance, following Bullitt's return from Europe last week he did not even visit the state department. He went straight to the White House, and after a week-end there, accompanied the president to Hyde Park.

As a result, the state department had no idea what Bullitt's views were on the Petain government. In fact, while he was issuing public statements approving the Petain regime, his alleged colleagues in the state department were of the very positive opinion that the Petain government was a mere puppet for Germany, and that it would be replaced sooner or later by another puppet government under the ex-Communist, now Nazi, Jacques Doriot.

Bullitt's last days in Paris and Vichy comprise one of the most important chapters in recent world history. But the state department knows no more about it than the interviews which its ambassador gives to the press.

* * *

Japan's Rampage.

U. S. INTELLIGENCE reports from the Far East state that Japan will join the Axis officially and actively just as soon as Hitler launches his big blitzkrieg.

Meanwhile, the Japanese military have adopted the policy of causing as many incidents as possible to annoy the United States and to fan them up in the Japanese press. There is no question in the minds of U. S. officials that this strategy is being worked out in co-operation with Hitler and has two ends in view:

1st, to keep the American public worried about the Far East, so that the White House cannot become too absorbed with the plight of England during Hitler's blitzkrieg.

2nd, to convince the Japanese public that there is nothing to fear from the United States. The more the Japanese press attacks this country, and the more American citizens are beaten up in Shanghai, the more the Japanese public will be led to believe that the United States is powerless to send armed forces across the Pacific.

Then when this conviction is thoroughly embedded, the military will make their long contemplated drive into the Dutch East Indies.

Note—Looking further ahead, U. S. observers in the Orient also are convinced that when Hitler gets ready for his drive into South America, Japan will strike toward the Pacific coast of South America simultaneously.

* * *

Russia-U. S. Allies?

ALL of this demonstrates the fact that the United States, if it is not to be left entirely alone in the Pacific, must move quickly and must secure friends. To date, there are only two potential friends worth worrying about.

1, is Great Britain, which in fact is America's first line of defense, and which might be saved if the United States gave major aid.

2, is Russia, the natural enemy of Japan, whom Japan fears more than she fears the United States. A hook-up between Russia and the United States could hamstring Japan, keep her powerless in the North Pacific.

That is why the Roosevelt-Bullitt statement denouncing Russia is so important. Bullitt was the man who persuaded Roosevelt to recognize Soviet Russia in the first place, and apparently he still has the last word on the country he now hates so bitterly.

So probably there will be no warming up to Russia, no matter what Japan does in the Pacific.

* * *

New Alliance.

A NEW Workers Alliance (union of WPA workers) is quietly in the making.

David Lasser, former Alliance president who resigned in protest against Communist and fellow-traveler domination of the executive board, has received so many pledges of rank-and-file support that he has undertaken to establish an entirely new organization. Three days after he quit, Lasser had received more than 1,000 letters from Alliance members and local leaders urging a new union.

Lasser's resignation apaparently was a blow to the left-wing leaders. They had secretly planned to seize complete control of the Alliance at its national convention, originally scheduled for July 11. But his bolt and open charge that they were Reds upset this scheme, and they postponed the convention to Aug. 28.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The ways of democracy, like the ways of the heathen Chinee, are often strange—but somehow they are mighty effective—or should I just say potent.

It was the methods of democracy that made it possible for Wendell L. Willkie with his short-term campaign to be nominated at Philadelphia. It was those same methods which formed the foreign policy plank in the Democratic platform.

Convention delegates and even politicians in office cannot stand the pressure from back home. The most effective lobby or pressure group in the country today is that which bores from within a congressman's own district with a flood of telegrams, letters and phone calls to urge or demand some particular piece of legislation or the nomination of some particular candidate.

* * *

Know What They Want.

TWICE in the last few weeks, I have seen this thing at work. In Philadelphia, delegates were stunned by the overwhelming verbal and written demand for the nomination of Willkie. His opponents insist that it was a fictitious thing . . that it existed only because of a planned campaign with cries from the hinterlands. I wouldn't know. I'm no detective. But whatever its source, its effect was immensely successful.

In Chicago the same thing happened. Let me say right now that I am not even hinting that the Democratic party was committed to fighting on any front but our own. But if there WERE any so-called "war-mongers" with any influence when the Chicago convention assembled they were beaten down and out by the very same thing that picked Willkie, a demand from the hinterlands that we stay out of any foreign wars.

It isn't within my province of passing along the inside facts to say whether I think this good or bad. Like a whole lot of readers, I don't know. But I do know that an active portion of the vociferous public demanded a stay-out-of-war declaration from the Democrats and that they got it in no uncertain terms.

* * *

No Argument.

TAKING their cue from the President's statement a few days before they went into action, the Democratic platform committee wrote into their commitments that we would never send any of our boys abroad to fight in foreign wars; that we, as a people, would consecrate ourselves to principles of peace and the pursuit of friendly relations among all peoples.

There are two amazing and, I think, interesting things about this plank in the platform. In the first place, not there by popular demand as democracy understands it, it commits the party to the very same thing that Republicans wrote into their platform: "The Republican party is firmly opposed to involving this nation in foreign war. The Republican party stands for Americanism, preparedness and peace."

In the second place—IF both candidates stick to their party platforms—foreign policy cannot be even a minor issue in this campaign, AND foreign policy is THE ONLY major issue which politicians here have considered the nub and nerve center of the campaign. Radical changes in the foreign situation could change that condition, but there is very little indication now that those changes will come before November.

Therefore, as a result of the strange ways of democracy, any serious campaign contention on the most vital question of the day (whether we should take an aggressive or defensive attitude toward the forces which seem to be becoming dominant in the world) will not be, cannot be, importantly debated.

Apparently the active, letter-writing telegram-sending, telephone-calling portion of the American people don't want any part of any foreign war—and both parties and both candidates have heeded that demand and laid their lines accordingly.

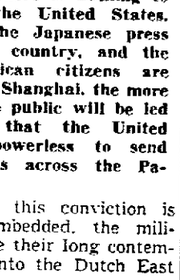
A Farmer's Diary

Fruit Farmer

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FOR SEVERAL miles, along all country roads, are signs directing travelers to my neighbor's fruit farm. His orchards comprise 200 acres or more. He with his wife, passes our home daily in his car, going eastward to their summer home among the hills. Yesterday, when we thought early apples were ripe, we drove down to get some for cooking. When we parked our car near the tenant house I saw him sharply watching the small lily pond, where wild ducks had been swimming.



"I saw a mud turtle in there," he said, as I came up. "I'll bet he's the thief that's been gettin' my ducks. They're cunning—turtles are. I've seen them draw under a duck almost half grown and leave nothing but the hide and head afloatin' on the water."

We walked up on the hill to see his grapes. "I didn't get the spray on soon enough," he said. "Dry rot had already started. But they'll be all right now. They're all Concords." A smile of satisfaction played across his face as he looked across the tender, growing rows, hung heavily with green bunches.

From here we could see several orchards he had recently planted, extending east and south. We looked down upon the well-kept barn, the plum grove, the thrifty black walnuts and locusts growing in the pasture.

"When I came here," he mused, "that barn was falling off its foundation. All these hollows were bramble thickets and the hills were gullied and overgrown. Some people laughed and said that even trees wouldn't grow, the land was so poor. From the tumble-down barn I've made a good one; from the poor hillsides I've grown an orchard; from thickets I've made a hundred acres of permanent pasture. About all the buildings, where water was scarce, I've placed running water. No man or animal goes hungry or thirsty around here now," and his face beamed as he related these contrasts.

He loved his dogs who followed him about; he was kind to the kittens that purred about his ankles, and the wild life that had found haven on his premises. He had, I thought, the spirit of a pioneer. He had found a wilderness and made of it a bower of fruitful trees.

CHAPTER III

The Silver Gril, catering strictly to Millville's upper brackets and boasting a modern setting of chromium, billious blue stucco walls and black fittings, was less than half-filled at noon-time. For the most part, Millville ate what was placed in front of it, not from menus. Millville's pocketbooks were gaited to quantity rather than to quality. Marilyn and Sally were shown to a table for two, near the entrance. Marilyn was studying the menu when Sally leaned frward and lowered her voice to say:

"Don't look now, Lynn, but the Queen of Beauty is just coming in with a gentleman camp follower."

"Clara?" Marilyn glued her eyes to the menu. Clara must not catch her looking. No telling what might happen when Clara was in a mood. "Who's the meal ticket?"

"I don't know, but from the visual evidence I'd say he's a city slicker. Dark and glossy. Say—I catch on. He's that chap who's been running the beauty contest at the Bijou. Clara's dripping honey. He's not looking so well. Maybe he doesn't like honey."

* * *

Clara Marsh was drinking deep draughts of the heady wine of conquest. She was an acclaimed beauty. As she entered the Silver Grill with a handsome stranger, she was so absorbed in putting on her act of elegant detachment that she dod not indulge her desire to quest the room in search of envy and admiration. Not until she was seated opposite Al Martino in a pose of bright expectancy did she notice the two young women at a table near the front of the grill. Sally Meacham! And of all the tough luck, just when she was on the verge of the big thrill—Marilyn. What was her sister doing in the Silver Grill? And that snip of a Meacham? How could they afford to eat in the best place in town?

Clara felt the surge of anger that had shaken her the evening before when Marilyn waved the telegram announcing the Clarco award over the heads of her stunned family. Had Marilyn known she, Clara, was to be here with Al Martino? But no, she couldn't possibly. Clara hadn't been sure herself she could manage it until the last minute. She'd ignore the interlopers, pretend she didn't see them.

At that moment Sally caught Clara's narrowed eyes, smiled, waved familiarly. Clara favored her with a cold stare.

"Darling, the Queen is looking right through me with those big china blue eyes," Sally chuckled. "She's wiring me I'm not to dare let on I know her. So I'll wave again, to show her she can't shush me. Umm. This time her boy friend saw me. He's speaking to her, asking her who the two ravishing femmes at this table are. Especially you, Lynn. He's getting two eyefuls of you—"

Marilyn said, "Let's not pay any attention to them, Sally. We came here for a treat. Let's have it. There's creamed chicken and mushrooms on toast. Sound yummy to you?"

"Yummy!" Sally's appetite for food bested her appetite for mischief. Diligently, she applied herself to the menu.

* * *

Her surmise as to what might be going on at the table where Clara and her escort had ordered cocktails was so near the truth that it would have surprised even Sally.

"There's a cute little number up front giving you the highho," Al Martino said. "Seems to know you well."

"I don't know her," Clara said, shortly. "At least I don't care to know her. She's quite ordinary."

"Ouch. Common people, huh? Too bad. Looks cuter than common to me. And the job across from her—sa-ay, strictly streamlined. Get the profile! Fine and clean. If I were a poet, or a painter Id do something about that profile, Maybe, if you know the owner, you'll go big hearted and stake me to a close-up."

Mingled anger and chagrin tricked Clara into forgetting her barrage of flattery.

"If you brought me here to introduce you to every woman in the place," she snapped, "we might as well leave. The streamlined job—as you call it—happens to be my sister." Might as well acknowledge Marilyn. If Al stayed in town for a few days necessary to wind up the Bouquet of Beauty contest he'd be sure to learn of the relationship. Better to have done with it now, to warn him she would not stand for nonsense with Marilyn.

"Your sister!" Al was enthusiastic. "But, Beautiful, why didn't you tell me you have a gem of purest ray serene in the family? Sister is—she's tremendous. Why don't we invite her and the little cutey to share our humble board?"

"If you dare—" Clara heard her own voice, shrill, shrewish. She'd have to control herself, take up the honey-drip again. "I'm sorry, Al," she said, registering what she hoped was a wistful sadness. "Sister and I don't get on very well. She insists on living her own life. It's a great sorrow for ma—for mother and for father. They're really such dears—I can't forgive sister for the trouble she causes them."

"On the level? I'd never take her for a meanie. What does the gal do to weigh down the parental hearts?"

Clara lowered her eyes. Lids and lashes, she felt, were among her best features.

"I'd rather not discuss it," she said. "It's—embarrassing."

"Oh, all right, beautiful." Al was thinking there are more ways than one to catch up with a pretty girl. Far be it from him to rattle any family skeletons. "What ho! The cocktails," he said. "I tried to get Daquiris but the fair city of Millville is as yet entirely innocent of the super-pepper-uppers. It goes on getting hellish on gin. Here's to you, Beautiful. Here's that you knock New York into a cocked hat. It's been tried by experts, so don't be too disappointed if the Stork Club fails to fall in a swoon when you get around to favoring it with your presence."

* * *

Clara laughed. Her laugh definitely was not one of her good points. It was mirthless, affected.

"You do say the most outlandish things, Al. Half the time I don't know what you're talking about. You wouldn't be poking fun at me, would you?"

"What? Me?" reproachfully. "Why, lady, I'm less than the dust under your chariot wheels—that is if you'll furnish the chariot. Another wee nippie?"

"Wee nippie? I- don't understand—"

"Another cocktail, Backward!"

"Oh, no—I'd love it, of course—but you know how it is in a hick town. In Millville cocktails at noon are considered terribly fast. I'll probably be talked about for taking the first one. People are so disgustingly narrow-minded. It will be so marv'lous to get away, to go where people really have fun, where they really live. You'll show me all New York, won't you, Al, every bit of it? Promise?"

"I doubt I'll live that long," Al said, wearily. "But be of good cheer, my pet. You'll see enough to shake the hay out of your hair." His eyes followed Marilyn and Sally out through the Silver Grill door. "If you've finished toying with that whipped cream gadget, we'll turn on the switch and get under way. I got work to do."

"You're not walking home with me?" protesting. "I know your car is out of order but I don't mind walking, really I don't. I love walking."

"Good. I hate walking. But that's neither here nor there as the boys say—I'm a working man and the boss is likely to call a strike on me if I don't prove it. I'll ring you later, Beautiful. Meantime, don't mope."

Miss Cleo Gault, Herbert Cripe Married At Paradise Hill United Brethren Church; Will Live In Ashland.

AT 4 O'CLOCK yesterday afternoon the single ring ceremony was performed which united in marriage Miss Cleo Gault, Paradise Hill, and Herbert Cripe, Mansfield. Rev. Robert Airhart of the United Brethren church of Paradise Hill officiated.

Miss Gault, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gault, was attired in a street length dress of white lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses and gardenias, and wore rosebuds in her hair. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Ralph Aten, Ashland, who wore a street length dress of teal blue crepe and carried pink rose buds. Olus Cripe, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Nuptial music preceding the ceremony was furnished by Miss Betty Hiner, violinist, of Mansfield, and Earl Barr, pianist, Ashland.

Mrs. Gault attended her daughter's wedding attired in a blue printed street-length dress, while Mrs. Cripe wore a dusty rose lace.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home. The table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, and bouquets of pink and white sweet peas and white candles tied with pink ribbons completed the setting.

Later the couple left for a trip to New York City and Niagara Falls, N. Y. Upon their return they will make their home in Ashland. For traveling Mrs Cripe wore a black and white silk dress with white accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Ashland high school, and is a stenographer at the Improved Manufacturing company. Mr. Cripe, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cripe, Mansfield road, is also a graduate of Ashland high school, and is employed at the F. E. Myers company.

First Lutheran Church Scene Of Nuptial Service Sunday

IN a quiet ceremony before members of their immediate families, Miss Catherine F. Young and William W. Gross were united in marriage at the First Lutheran church yesterday afternoon. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony before the altar at 1:30 o'clock.

The bride who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Young, 301 West Fourth street, was attired in a street-length dress, fashioned with a black crepe skift and white lace bodice. All of her accessories were white, and she had an orchid shoulder corsage.

Miss Mary Bishop was the bride's only attendant, and she wore a powder blue dress with white accessories. Yellow roses and pink sweetpeas formed her corsage. Norman P. Gross was his brother's best man. Mr. Gross is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer L. Gross, 93 Dawson avenue.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Young appeared in a rose crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses and gypsophila. Mrs. Gross' dress was of aqua crepe, and with it she wore white accessories and a corsage similar to Mrs. Young's.

After an informal reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gross left for a northern motor trip. Upon their return to the city, they will divide their time between the homes of their parents, until the completion of their new home on Chilton avenue in September.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gross are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school. She is employed at the Ohio Brass company. FISHY BUT TRUE

Mass merchandising has moved fresh fish inland to such an extent that last year the country at large consumed 47,578,000 pounds of fish, a great portion of which came from the immense fish markets in Boston.

SOY-BEANS FOR MEAT

The soy-bean is attracting increasing attention both in commercial and government circles because of its large protein and fat content. Food experts now recognize that the soy-bean is an excellent substitute for meat.

Rehearses In Morning

The girl is Joyce Compton, who always does her rehearsing upon awakening in the morning. She's discovered that's the best time, because she is refreshed by sleep and her spirits are at their highest pitch. Here she is seen getting the "feel" of her comedy characterization in "The Villain Still Pursued Her," screen production of an extravagant old-time melodrama.

Informally Speaking...

July 29, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

THAT popular song of a couple years back, "Tropical Heat Wave" would indeed make a good theme for the weather we've been having of late. . . . And in spite of all the relief we've been promised, the temperature climbs higher each passing day.

* * * * *

Marianne

Vacationers, however, seem quite undaunted, and some of them are even heading southward. . . . Kay Johnson, Kitty Jane Birch, Betty Koogle and Betty Fisher are driving to Virginia Beach for a week. . . . They left Saturday for Cincinnati and then will continue on down through Kentucky. . . . Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Frietchen left yesterday to motor to the Smoky mountains, where they will spend a week.

* * * * *

The cooling breezes of Lake Erie are beckoning lots of folks too, Lucy. . . . Annabell Strong, Rachel Collett, Joan Geiger, and Dorothy Gannaway are spending this week at Ruggles Beach, while Martha and Barbara Hansberger were there last week. . . . Eileen Logan and Betty Hammel were there over the week-end, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Varney and their children have returned from a two-weeks vacation at Mittewanga.

* * * * *

Mr. and Mrs. Al Donnan (they're former residents, you know. She was Elizabeth Anderson before her marriage) have returned to their home in Bloomington, Ill. following a two-weeks visit here. . . . Mrs. Donnan's sister, Susan Anderson, has gone back with them, and will stop-off in Chicago, Ill. before coming home in about a week

* * * * *

SPEAKING of Chicago, Marianna Cripps, whom I think you met last September when she served as an attendant at the wedding of her cousin, Josephine Henness and John Chatlain, is here for a visit with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Henness, and her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McMullen. . . . Marianna has a two-weeks sojourn from her interesting job in Chicago—she's a personal buyer for Carson Piere Scott (a large department store there) and during the summer months, works in the brides' room.

* * * * *

Another visitor in town was Doris Joan Smith, who was here over the week-end to see her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tolbert E. Smith. . . . She stopped here after a three-weeks stay in Washington, D. C.—to be just in time for a house warming the Smiths' friends had for them in their new apartment Saturday night. . . . Doris has gone on to her home in Tulsa, Okla. now to make plans for her wedding in September.

* * * * *

YOU'LL be as happy as we all are to know that Virginia Chew has been named reference librarian at the Mansfield Public library. . . . She was graduated from the school of library science of Western Reserve university in June and received her A.B. degree from the College of Wooster in 1936.

* * * * *

These are happy days at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Tomlin, as their daughter, Helen Mae, is there for her annual three-weeks vacation from the Jewish hospital in Cincinnati, where she's in nurses training. . . . She will be a senior at the institution next fall.

* * * * *

DR. AND MRS. ROY C. REHDER have returned from a vacation in the west—they visited their respective families in Grand Island, Neb. and Council Bluffs, Ia. . . . Lieut. P. S. Bechtel, who is now stationed at Selfridge Field, Mich., came down yesterday afternoon to see his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Galbraith, and then went back in the evening—making both trips by plane. . . . And to wind up the vacation news for today, Lucy, Dr. and Mrs. Charles R. Keller and their family are leaving tomorrow to spend several weeks at their cottage in Luzerene, Mich. Sue Kozak is in Washington, D. C. visiting with friends, and Mr. and Mrs. John Gross have gone to the World fair in New York City.

* * * * *

DON'T let the heat bother you too much, Lucy, and take time out while you're sipping a lemonade some day to write me a note.

Lovingly,

Marianne

GLOVE LAST

It's a smart idea, when you're wearing your shoes with the "walled last" . . . to wear the American-made leather glove that has been designed with the "walled last" too. This three-dimensional appearance is achieved with strips of leather . . . doeskin, capeskin or pigskin . . . inserted down the side seams of the glove.

Restful sleep on comfortable mattress, springs and pillows helps to promote good health and prevents the irritability that comes with lack of proper rest.
